Government, In Business.
Why Ask Europe?
Crime Grows Bolder.
The Fight On Leprosy.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

THE NATIONAL recovery act, which would give government officials power to control practically all industries, business payrolls, and wages in the United States, represents an important step, taken suddenly.

Nothing could be better than control of industry by government, if government could prove that it has more intelligence in such control, than the private individuals that have controlled hitherto.

Nothing could be more desirable than an arrangement that would prevent too much production in one direction, too low wages in another.

BUT BARRING occasional panics and depressions, this country has done marvelously well, leaving control of industry to individuals that have specialized in industry.

Henry Ford expressed the thought of many when he said he had always understood that to manage a business well you must know something about it.

BUT SOMETHING HAD TO BE DONE, and the nation hopes that what has been done, taking control of United States enterprises from those that have built up the enterprises, will prove wise and profitable in the long run.

EXPERIENCE shows that the nation, after depression, or panic, has always struggled back to its feet somehow, and gone on to greater industrial development, greater prosperity and higher wages.

Just what will be the result of the government's effort "to run everything" nobody can guess. It might mean the millenium, it might mean DISASTER.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has rejected the proposition to let European countries decide on the value of the dollar, as compared with their own money, and the people will be glad to hear it.

It was proposed to make the British pound sterling, which is a piece of paper printed by the Bank of England, worth four dollars. America sees no particular reason why Europe should regulate the value of our money, or have anything to say about it, except to take it or leave it as they choose.

Britain did not consult us about going off the gold basis. The French government, when it cut 80 per cent from the value of its franc, did not ask our opinion, or the opinion of England.

What is the matter with this country, with all its talk about being the "greatest and richest in the world," that it must travel 3,000 miles across the ocean to ask others for advice about our own business?

AN OKLAHOMA outlaw, escaped from prison, and carrying on his trade industriously, was seized by officials, including one employe of the national government. When they appeared at the Kansas City Union Railroad Station with their prisoner, a gang of "loungers" standing near an automobile produced a machine gun, killed five, including the outlaw whom they sought to liberate, and wounded others.

One of the men killed was an agent of the Department of Justice, and Mr. Cummings, Attorney General, will see what can be done about that.

Department of Justice officials are marvelous at finding and arresting counterfeiters. Perhaps they will do as well with highway murderers.

DR. M'KINLEY, of the George Washington school of medicine, and Dr. Soule, of the University of Michigan school of medicine, have isolated and "cultivated outside of the human body," germs that cause leprosy, once the most dreaded of all diseases, now unimportant compared with cancer, tuberculosis, sleeping sickness, heart disease and others.

Experiments on two species of monkeys, their blood and tissue closely resembling that of their alleged human "cousins," have demonstrated the success of the leprosy experiment.

The next step, perhaps, will be immunization through vaccination and cure.

Doctors announce that the most important work of medical science today is learning how to prevent rather than how to cure diseases.

The new born human being a hundred years hence may start with a dozen or more "immunizations" implanted in his blood.

WHEN JAMES FERGUSON, of Boston, went aboard the North German Lloyd steamship Bremen on Saturday his passage money was returned to him because he was the ten millionth passenger carried by the North German Lloyd line.

This is a fine steamship line, with reliable, courageous officers and crews. Chancellor Hitler's government might remember that it owed its success and constant progress for years to a manager who was a Jew.

THE BRITISH, who handed Uncle Sam "ten millior dollars worth" of 35-cent silver, at the rate of 50 cents an ounce, in place of seventy-five million dollars, share the feelings of the French press, said to be much disturbed by "icy blasts of criticism directed upon them from some quarters in the United States."

Can you imagine the icy blast that would have been sent in our direction, from England, if we had given those gentlemen seven million dollars worth of silver, instead of seventy-five million real dollars?

NEW YORK CITY, like other cities, states and nations, and the majority of human beings, is looking around for "new sources of income." Various

Sankey, Boettcher Kidnaper, Identified By Ransom Victim

William Hamm, Jr., wealthy clubman and brewer, has written his own story of his kidnaping and subsequent release for the Associated Press. It appears on Page 6.

ST. PAUL, June 19.—(AP.)—Five or six men, one of them resembling Verne Sankey, wanted for questioning in connection with two other abductions, kidnaped William Hamm, millionaire president of the Theodore Hamm Brewing Company, he said on his return today soon after being released unharmed 45 miles from home.

Hamm said he did not know how much ransom was paid. H. J. Charles, attorney for the brewing company, declined to name the amount paid the abductors who originally demanded $100,000.

Hamm said the kidnapers were quite kind to him, allowing him to order anything he wanted to eat and administering to his slightest whim.

He said Sunday at 3 p. m., they told him they had some good news, then added the ransom had been paid.

The ransom was delivered either by W. W. Dunn, city sales manager of the brewing company and close friend of Hamm, or another undisclosed person. Contact was effected during a ride made by the person carrying the money in a company automobile. Acting under instructions from the kidnapers, the doors and a section of the back had been removed so no one could be concealed in the machine.

The money was delivered between Rush City and Pine City by one man in a company auto-

CARNEGIE GETS BIG RAIL ORDER

The Carnegie Steel Company today had an order for 7,500 tons of rails, part of the 10,000 ton order distributed by the Norfolk and Western Railway. The rest of the order went to the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, which also got an order of 120,000 tie plates from the Seaboard Air Line.

These orders with others are reflected in the Pittsburgh district.

Due to increased production clerical help has been called back to work by the steel company from furloughs ranging from two to nine days a month.

A 10 per cent wage raise for H. C. Frick Company's 1,000 miners in the Uniontown district was announced at the same time, which is expected to be extended to 5,000 additional men by July 1.

Colonial Mines No. 1, 2 and 3 and the Footdale plant will go into five-day-a-week operation, the highest in many months.

Momentum in the upward turn in employment is also given by reports from Cleveland, Philadelphia and Chicago. Since May 1, 3,222 families have been dropped from the rolls of the Philadelphia County Relief Board on account of the upswing in employment.

From a peak of 199,000 unemployed at the end of March in Cleveland, the figure has dropped 28,000 to a total of 171,000.

Payrolls have expanded 8 per cent in Illinois during the past month, according to reports from 1,610 manufacturers in Chicago and throughout the state. These gains, according to the Department of Labor, are the largest for any single month since May, 1922.

Having 'Bangup' Time, Says President After Leading U. S. Destroyers Merry Chase to Harbor

NANTUCKET, Mass., June 19.—(AP.)—The President of the United States, plainly showing the need of a shave and his face and oilskins glistening with salt spray, put into this island port today on his vacation yacht, Amberjack II.

President Roosevelt, on a vacation voyage in the 45-foot yacht to Campo Bello Island, N. B., had planned with his party to cover the 80-mile distance from Edgartown on the island of Marthas Vineyard, where he spent the night, to provincetown, on the tip of Cape Cod, today.

A stiff north wind so badly kicked up the sea, however, that he thought best to put into Nantucket for shelter. He explained to a delegation of town officials who came out to meet him in the harbor that he did not mind the weather himself, but feared the sea was too uncomfortable for "the boyes on the press boats" that followed the Amberjack, far astern.

The President said he was having a "bangup good time" and that he did not expect to set foot ashore for two weeks. He said he would rather sail on the Amberjack than any Navy ship float.

The party on the Amberjack prepared to spend the night in the harbor and did notd isclose their plans for the morrow.

The President carried on a bit of banter when the accompanying newspapermen arrived. He asked:

"How is everybody? I became concerned about you when I saw your yacht pitching and rolling."

The Amberjack was doing her share of pitching and tossing, too. She led the watchdog destroyers and the U. S. S. Cayahoga a merry chase out to the edge of the cape and down here.

Seated in the stern of the schooner, bareheaded, "Skipper" Roosevelt guided the vessel between the buoys into the harbor and brought her to anchorage.

Policeman Shoots Boy Theft Suspect

DETROIT, June 17.—(INS.)—Henry Kozokiewicz, 15, was near death today from a bullet wound inflicted by Patrolman Joseph Baum when he failed to halt after a purse-snatching episode.

Patrolman Baum said the boy snatched a woman's purse, but the youth told detectives he ran when a companion snatched the purse. The purse was found lying near him.

MONETARY ROW SNAGS PARLEY

European Gold Bloc Urges Recess to End Impasse

LONDON, June 19.—(AP.)—Adjournment of the World Economic Conference until the question of stabilization of currencies can be settled was advocated today in the conference headquarters' lobby by the European gold bloc.

It was understood the French were fostering this program on the ground that no progress was possible on other lines until some form of stabilization had been achieved.

The adjournment talk was entirely unofficial but it was so persistent and far-reaching that it was being privately discussed by the heads of the important delegations.

FRANCE HEADS BLOC

In the gold block group, which is headed by France, a month to six weeks was mentioned as the probable length of the adjournment.

France and her adherents asserted that everything rests with Washington and that there is no use trying to continue the conference until President Roosevelt issues final instructions to the American delegates.

This development came just as the conference committees adjourned for the day until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Rumors that officials of central banks had reached a secret agreement to begin stabilization were emphatically denied by important American financial experts.

It was explained that the central bank chiefs have followed the situation and have developed possible technical procedure to be

VARE REPORTED FOR FLETCHER

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—The Philadelphia Bulletin today said close friends of William S. Vare have revealed that Henry P. Fletcher, Greencastle, Pa., former Ambassador, is reported to be preferred for Governor by the Philadelphia leader.

The reported selection, it is stated, came as a surprise to members of the Philadelphia organization because they had heard Gen. Edward Martin, Republican state chairman, is favored by many county leaders outside of Philadelphia.

One reason why Vare is said to favor Fletcher, the Bulletin states, is the alleged failure of Martin to lend support to the fight on behalf of the old age pension bill, defeated in the last days of the Legislature.

Wales, Fairbanks Lose Golf Match

SUNNINGDALE, England, June 19.—(INS.)—Two of the world's most picturesque amateur golfers, the Prince of Wales and Douglas Fairbanks met defeat in a foursome over the Sunningdale course today.

They were beaten 3 up and 2 to play by Archie Compston, Scottish professional, and Prince George, younger brother of the Prince of Wales.

25 Injured as Plane Crashes Into Crowd

NANCY, France, June 19.—(INS.)—Twenty-five persons lay injured today after a falling airplane landed in a crowd of spectators, causing one death.

Four of the injured, one a young girl, were critically burned by flaming gasoline. The pilot of the craft was killed. Observers said the pilot was unable to bring the plane out of a tailspin.

Schools Versus Politics

A NEW DEAL that spells progress involves not only the doing of good things that ought to be done, but the undoing of bad things that ought not to have been done.

One of the worst reactions to the sudden realization of the vast waste in governmental expenditure was the attempt to economize at the expense of the public schools.

Other fields of expenditure with much greater possibilities of economy were passed over because they were protected by political and other illegitimate interests.

The schools of the nation could not put up a fight and were forced to suffer. The result is too shocking to contemplate.

In 15 states of the union schools have been CLOSED ENTIRELY and in 14 states school terms have been curtailed for no reason except to save money for politicians' salaries.

It is fewer politicians, not fewer schools that the country needs.

THE NATION would be much better off if the number of people now occupying public offices was cut in half. All our legislatures are too large and cumbersome. Congress is twice too large a body.

More work and better work could be accomplished by half the number of our legislators. Smaller bodies would mean less time wasted in windy debate and more time devoted to serious and useful effort.

Congress spends more than half its time talking for the Congressional Record, which the late William Jennings Bryan once described as the "most UNWIDELY READ of newspapers."

Every committee of Congress, and the same is true of the state legislatures, is cumbrous, overenlarged and to that extent inefficient.

THE MACHINERY of government at every point is complicated — and unnecessarily — by too large a personnel.

There should be a merger and consolidation of Congressional districts, and also of legislative districts.

The larger districts resulting from such reduction of their number would not only reduce the number of representatives, with consequent saving of public money, but it would improve the type and caliber of our elected representatives.

Larger districts, both congressional and legislative, would give added dignity to their representation.

THIS IS OBVIOUSLY A PROGRAM OF EFFICIENCY.

The business of legislation could be carried on at lessened cost and with immeasurable improvement in the product.

IT WOULD not be unreasonable to reduce the membership of the Lower House of Congress to 200 members or even less.

This would at least diminish the aggregate of talk. With less talk we might reasonably anticipate an increase of useful work.

The influence and value of a public body does not depend upon the number of its members, but rather upon their quality and efficiency. It will hardly be contended that the Supreme Court could accomplish more if it had two or three hundred members.

Let us economize, but let us economize with intelligence.

It is the reverse of intelligent to close the schools to the children of America while at the same time maintaining such bodies as Congress and the state legislatures, with their distended memberships—as asylums for political parasites.

First Mass of Priest Requiem for Mother

A grief-stricken young priest will say his first mass Wednesday morning in St. Mary's Church, Lockhart street, North Side.

It will be a high mass of requiem for his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Marzhauser, 68, of 904 Phineas street.

Mrs. Marzhauser, a widow, died Saturday afternoon.

Yesterday morning her son, ending a spiritual retreat at St. Vincent's Seminary, Latrobe, Pa., was ordained by Bishop Hugh C. Boyle.

For years the mother had longed for the day when she would see her son ordained.

An illness of months had shattered her hopes of being present for the ceremony, but she had prayed that she might welcome him back to her home parish as a member of the clergy.

ENGINEERS IN DISPUTE OVER CAUSE

Fissures Widening in Stonework of New Postoffice

Two score cracks and fissures have developed in the stone and granite facing of Pittsburgh's new $8,000,000 Federal building, it was revealed today.

Appearing first as hairline blemishes, some of the cracks have widened to approximately a quarter-inch.

The city's most prominent engineers yesterday could only theorize as to the cause, and feared to estimate the real extent of the damage.

An engineering blunder was indicated.

MERCURY BLAMED

Maj. Robert A. Greenfield, United States Engineer supervising the construction of the building expresses the opinion that expansion and contraction of the steel framework with temperature changes is responsible.

Local engineering authorities disagree almost unanimously. Several of them insist that a structural defect is to blame.

They point to many buildings in the downtown district constructed of limestone and steel with no evident cracks in the limestone, although the buildings have been standing for years.

W. A. Morton, of the Amsler-Morton Company, consulting engineers, was among the engineers contradicting Maj. Greenfield's views. He said:

"There is something peculiar about the stone cracking in the new postoffice. There must be other stresses and strains which are causing the stone to break. Perhaps it is not properly supported."

INSTITUTE CITED

The new Mellon Institute Building, engineers say, is a steel and limestone building with very close joints between the blocks, yet not a single stone has broken. Engi-

CHILD IN CELL, POLICE SCORED

Three-year-old Margaret Streck spent the night in a police cell with her mother, Mrs. Antonia Streck, and police today were called to task for it by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court.

Jones called attention to the police rule forbidding this, except in serious cases, when the child appeared in court with her mother, father and uncle, who were discharged.

The three adults, Valentine and Antonia Streck and Anthony Kosyk, were arrested shortly after midnight at 1 Sycamore street. Streck was running around in front of the house with his head cut. He accused his brother-in-law, Kosyk.

At the hearing, the three agreed he had been drinking and fell down the steps.

Mrs. Stresek said there were three other children, the oldest 15, at home alone all night. She and her youngest child were kept in the matron's room at Central Police Station.

Zoning Board Post Goes to Connelly

Mayor Herron sent to Council this afternoon the name of Eugene L. Connelly as a member of the Zoning Board to fill the vacancy caused by resignation of Wilmer M. Jacoby. Connelly's appointment was immediately confirmed. J. W. Cree, JJr., oldest member in point of service, will succeed Jacoby as chairman. W. C. Rice is the other member of the Board.

Oil Blast Injures Former Legion Chief

HENDERSON, Tex., June 19.—(INS.)—O. L. Bodenhamer, of El Dorado, Ark., former national commander of the American Legion, was critically burned in an explosion on his oil lease eight miles from here today.

He lighted a cigaret while talking to an employe and the explosion followed immediately.

U. S. CONTROL OF MARKET HINTED

Fletcher, Pecora Both Favor Sweeping Inquiry

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—A searching inquiry into the tremendous operations of the New York Stock Exchange, to determine the advisability of placing it under direct federal supervision, will follow the Senate's present banking investigation, International News Service learned today.

The market inquiry will be conducted by the Senate Banking and Currency Committee, now engaged in investigating commercial and private banking. The principal purpose of the market inquiry will be to decide whether new federal safeguards should be erected to protect the American investing public, which has poured billions of dollars into the stock exchange in recent years.

PROBE CALLS KAHN

The Senate committee resumes its banking inquiry next Monday. Then it will probe financial affairs of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., with Otto Kahn on the witness stand. Later, the inquiry may be prolonged to include Dillon, Read & Co., although some members of the committee favor postponement of this phase until cooler weather.

Senator Fletcher (Dem.), of Florida, committee chairman, revealed that the stock market would be probed before the investigation is completed. He fixed no date for the inquiry, but declared it would be held and completed before Congress returns to session next January. He said:

"We are not entirely satisfied with the stock exchange inquiry conducted by our committee a year ago. We are going into it again. We want to know more about its practices and how it handles securities.

"We will investigate Kuhn, Loeb & Co. first and Dillon, Read & Co. next. After that we may go into the Chase National Bank and some of the security affiliates of other great banks. When that is completed, we will take up the stock exchange again. We want to find out how to protect the public—so there will not be a repetition of 1929 when the general public was led into the market, trapped and squeezed out of millions upon millions of dollars."

PECORA ALL SET

Ferdinand Pecora, brilliant special counsel for the committee, sent a message from New York, confirming Fletcher's announcement. He said:

"If the committee is willing, we will go extensively into affairs of the stock exchange. We will investigate its operation, its practices and customs. We need this information to complete our picture of security operations. We want to get a complete picture of the market—how it functions—and how the wheels go round within it."

FEDERAL SUPERVISION

The inquiry probably will lead to some move for federal supervision of the stock exchange. Congress would have ample power to control it, through its exclusive control of the mails and interstate communication. It could bar all news of market operations from the mails and interstate communication and it could forbid shipment of securities in interstate commerce, if its regulations were disobeyed.

The banking inquiry, to be resumed next Monday, already has brought wide reforms in federal banking laws. The most important reforms were enactment of the national "blue sky" law, regulating flotation of new security issues, and the Glass-Steagall bill, which divorced commercial from investment banking and denied private bankers the right to accept deposits without submitting to public examination.

CIVIL SERVICE CUT LOOMS

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP.)—High officials are seriously considering a move to open thousands of jobs now under civil service for appointment by the Democratic administration.

It was learned authoritatively today that issuance of an executive order by President Roosevelt is being considered to revoke the executive orders by which the last three Republican presidents blanketed jobs under the civil service—that is, placed positions, once appointive, under the protection of the service law, incumbents and all without holding competitive examinations.

If President Roosevelt were to approve the idea the orders would permit selection by departmental heads of Democratic substitutes for those now holding the posts.

President Hoover added 1,150 federal positions to the civil service list by executive order, President Coolidge added 4,746, President Harding 344 and President Wilson 954.

Since all these jobs were given the classified status by executive orders instead of by legislation, they can be removed in the same way.

RAILWAY WAGE PEACE SEEN

CHICAGO, June 19.—(Universal)—Early settlement of the wage controversy between the 210 class 1 railroads of the country and the 21 standard railroad unions, without long-drawn-out negotiations and mediation, is expected as a result of action taken by President Roosevelt last week before he left Washington for a vacation.

The President directed that invitations be sent to W. F. Thiehoff, chairman of the conference committee of managers, and to A. F. Whitney, chairman of the Association of Railway Labor Executives, asking both groups to meet, Tuesday, with Joseph B. Eastman, newly appointed federal co-ordinator of transportation, to try to settle the controversy.

The action of the President became known in Chicago as members of both committees made preparations for the Washington trip.

EMPLOYMENT SHOWS GAIN

CLEVELAND, June 19.—(AP.)—From a peak of 199,000 at the end of March, the number of unemployed in Greater Cleveland has dropped steadily until at the end of May it had reached 171,000—a decrease of 28,000 or 14 per cent in two months, Howard Whipple Green, chairman of the employment and business statistics sub-committee of the Mayor's business recovery committee, said today.

The decrease in the number of unemployed put the figure on June 1 back at the place it was one year before, Green said.

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—(INS.)—The upswing of employment was reflected today in the rolls of the Philadelphia County Emergency Relief Board with the dropping of 3,222 families who no longer need aid since the peak of last May 1.

The decrease of 4.5 per cent in the number of families receiving aid can be traced directly to the increase in employment, Miss Dorothy C. Kann, executive director of the board, asserted. The largest dent in the relief rolls was made in the Kensington-Frankford section where long idle textile looms are beginning to turn.

GASOLINE PRICE BOOSTED HERE

Pittsburghers today are paying 3½ cents a gallon more for their gas than they were on the first of the month.

All companies on Saturday increased the price 1½ cents when the new federal tax of ½ cent became effective.

Two weeks ago motor gas was selling for 12½ cents a gallon cash. Then the 2-cent cash discount was removed, boosting the price to 14½ cents.

Yesterday when the family car was wheeled out for the Sunday spin, it was found the gas was an even 16 cents a gallon, 4½ cents of which is tax.

10,000 Hear Murray At Fredericktown

FREDERICKTOWN, Pa., June 19.—The right to collective bargaining and organization is now being given to miners, Philip Murray, vice president of the United Mine Workers, told 10,000 miners at a mass meeting here yesterday.

Another meeting of 3,000 miners was held at Mather, Greene County, and was addressed by P. T. Fagan, district president of the organization.

Sugar Conference Called by U. S.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP.)—A conference of sugar growers and distributors including those representing Cuba was called today by administrators of the farm adjustment act for June 27 when a program for early application of the farm law to price and over-production problems of sugar will be analyzed.

WOODIN, DAVIS SLATED FOR OUSTER

Both Will Quit Posts Soon, Capital Insists

By FULTON LEWIS
(Copyright, 1933, Universal Service, Inc.)

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Secretary of the Treasury Woodin and Ambassador-at-Large Norman Davis will resign their posts in the Roosevelt administration in the immediate future, Universal Service learns on unimpeachable authority.

The resignations are the result of disclosures by the Senate Banking Committee that both Woodin and Davis received stock from the J. P. Morgan Company at "bargain counter prices."

DOUGLAS SHIFT

Present Director of the Budget Lewis Douglas, it is stated, has been selected to fill the Treasury post. The administration has been under heavy pressure from numerous sources to remove him from his present position, in which he has supervised the drastic cuts in departmental budgets, veterans' benefits and other government expenditures.

Rumors of Woodin's resignation were rife here several weeks ago immediately following the disclosures of the Senate Banking Committee, where it was shown that Woodin was on every preferred list of J. P. Morgan & Co. Davis, it was shown, still owes the House of Morgan $10,000 on a $75,000 loan, although he has been representing the United States abroad in various economic and disarmament negotiations.

It is learned that the administration wanted to retain Woodin in the Treasury post, and sought to ease the situation over temporarily hoping the matter would "blow over."

FOE IN CABINET

One member of the cabinet, however, was adamant in his insistence to President Roosevelt that Woodin must go and the result is the coming resignation.

Although Davis is sailing for the United States today for the ostensible purpose of conferring with the President here and marking a report on his progress in disarmament discussions, the real reason for his recall, Universal Service is informed, is the Morgan disclosures.

Several severe attacks have been made upon Davis in both houses of Congress, and Representative George Holden Tinkham, of Massachusetts, Saturday presented a formal list of charges to the State Department, demanding Davis' immediate release from the government service.

Tinkham's charges included also accusations that Davis was involved in the Havana port scandals.

'I Am Not Resigning,' Norman Davis Declares

LONDON, June 19.—(AP.)—On his departure for the United States, Norman H. Davis denied that he intends to resign as President Roosevelt's special ambassador in Europe. He said:

"You can take it from me that I am not resigning. I am now going back to see the President at Washington or wherever he may be, but that is not the subject we shall talk about."

3 STATES VOTE ON REPEAL TOMORROW

Iowa, New Hampshire, Connecticut Ready To Ballot

Associated Press.

Friends and foes of the Eighteenth Amendment come to grips in three more states tomorrow.

Voters in Iowa, Connecticut and New Hampshire will decide whether or not to ratify repeal of national prohibition.

In Iowa both sides expressed confidence today. Prohibitionists held rallies at 25 points in the state yesterday. Gov. Herring predicted repeal would carry. The foes of prohibition planned a rally for tonight in Des Moines.

In Connecticut, which never ratified the Eighteenth Amendment, repealists were intent on rolling up a big vote. The Rev. Fletcher Parker, chairman of the Citizens Against Ratification, acknowledged that a prohibition victory was not expected.

M'BRIDE STATEMENT

Last-minute appeals were also heard in New Hampshire. Until a year or two ago this state was considered "dry." Recently it legalized 3.2 per cent beer.

Eleven states have voted already, all of them for repeal. Thirty-six states must so vote before prohibition is repealed.

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, said yesterday at Washington that "only one of the 11 states that have voted to date could have been considered dry, while 29 of the 37 states still to vote were under state-wide prohibition when the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted." He said the "drys can and should" prevent repeal.

SEES REPEAL

Earlier Jouett Shouse, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said there was a possibility 41 states would vote on the question this year, and if they do "I confidently predict repeal before the end of 1933."

---

DES MOINES, Ia., June 10.—(AP.)—Both "wets" and "drys" cast longing glances at the agricultural state of Iowa today, hoping for an outcome favorable to them in tomorrow's election on the question of retention of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The repealists professed to see some danger to their cause in the possibility of a light vote, but were cheered by a prediction from Gov. Clyde L. Herring and other leaders that repeal would carry by a large margin. The "drys," however, looked to Iowa to furnish the first stumbling block in the procession of states that voted against the amendment.

FIGHT IN WEST VA.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 19.—(AP.)—Dry since 1911, West Virginia today enters the last full week of bitter campaigning before taking its stand on the Eighteentn Amendment, June 27.

Anti-repeal forces regard the state as a final stronghold. Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, opened a forceful campaign which is winding up with a speaking tour conducted by F. Scott McBride, national head of the Anti-Saloon League.

Unexpectedly strong wet opposition has been encountered and both sides predict victory.

NAVY ORDERS 17 SHIPS

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP.)—The Navy today allotted 17 new ships for construction in private shipyards and announced bids will be open Wednesday, July 26.

The $238,000,000 naval program just announced by the administration provides for 32 ships. Of this number, 16 will go to private shipyards which also will get one cruiser previously authorized by law.

Assistant Secretary Roosevelt said:

"Awards will be made to private shipyards for the construction of four destroyers. These destroyers were authorized under the act of August 29, 1916, but to date no provision has been made for their construction. Bids will be opened on July 6."

PROBE DEFECTS IN P. O. BUILDING

neers allowed for expansion of materials in their calculations and in some cases protected the stonework with special "expansion joints."

Government officials, including Treasury Department engineers in Washington, will not say whether it is probable that walls will be reconstructed or only blocks developing defects will be replaced.

With blueprints and photographs of the damaged portions of the building before them, the Washington authorities have decided to determine what effect the summer heat will have on the structure before even suggesting a remedial measure.

That there is no apparent settling of the foundations has been determined by measurements from "bench marks" (the known points used by civil engineers in determining levels).

The building is being constructed by Aronberg-Fried Company, of New York. Representatives of that firm offered no explanation of the mystery. The architectural firm of Trowbridge & Livingstone, of New York, successful bidders on much of the Treasury Department architectural work has been investigating the cause, but to date has made no announcement of a theory as to the cause.

Harriman Trial Delayed by U. S.

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP.)—Trial of Joseph W. Harriman, former head of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, and Albert M. Austin, former vice president of the bank, was postponed today by Federal Judge William Bondy until next Monday.

Harriman was accused of making or causing to be made false entries in the accounts of depositors of the bank totaling $1,700,000, and Austin was accused of aiding and abetting.

1ST INDUSTRIAL GROUP CODE REJECTED

Plan Not Up to Mark Sought by Roosevelt, Johnson Declares

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of industrial recovery, decisively rejected the first of the industrial group codes submitted to him, it was learned exclusively by International News Service today.

This group, one of the first to get its regulations in shape for presentation, and the identity of which was not made public, has been informed that its code fails to measure up to the requirements the President has in mind in order to speed industrial recovery.

RECOVERY PLANS

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP.)—Administrators of the public works industrial regulation legislation were ready today to swing their organizations officially into action with reports from over the country indicating broad cooperation from business leaders.

To Hugh S. Johnson, director of the industrial section, came word that businessmen were forming their trade associations and were ready to go forward soon with agreements which will mean increased wages for workers.

It was said at Johnson's office that some definite announcement would be made soon. He was formally placing on the government payroll today those employes who have been working voluntarily for weeks creating the organization for administering the legislation which President Roosevelt described "the most far-reaching ever enacted by Congress."

JOB PROGRAM PUSHED

Meanwhile, Col. Donald H. Sawyer, the temporary administrator of public works, was completing his set-up for an early beginning on the $3,300,000,000 construction program designed to employ 1,000,000 men by fall.

Within a few days, he expects to announce state deputy administrators who will pass upon local projects submitted under the bill permitting grants to cities, counties and states of 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials.

President Roosevelt has asked that a complete list of some thousand projects be ready for approval by him upon his return from his vacation trip.

Pittsburgh Coal Head Backs Recovery Act

Full co-operation to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, administrator of the industrial recovery and control act, was pledged last night by the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

J. D. A. Morrow, president, said:

"All we are waiting for is to find out what Mr. Johnson wants us to do, and then we'll do our best to give it to him.

"Several attempts have been made to form codes in the industry before it was known just what regulations the government wanted. We have been waiting until the law was passed, until it was definitely established just what was wanted before going ahead in a code."

BIG GAIN SHOWN IN COAL OUTPUT

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP.)—Sharp increases in both bituminous coal and anthracite production for the week ended June 10 are reported by the Bureau of Mines.

The anthracite output was estimated at 735,000 tons as compared with 594,000 tons the preceding week. For the first time since April 1, production for the corresponding year showed an increase.

Bituminous coal production for the week increased half a million tons, bringing the total nearly 1,500,000 tons above that for the corresponding period last year. The Bureau of Mines estimated 5,435,000 tons were produced during the week in question.

Today

taxes are proposed, and those that would be taxed protest violently and successfully. The latest plan is to sell New York City "baby bonds," as low as $10 per bond, bearing 5½ per cent interest, a high rate for the richest city in the world.

The real estate in Central Park is worth more than the total debt of New York City under normal conditions.

THOSE THAT lent to Germany are told that they can accept German currency, "or wait." What is owing them is payable in gold, but gold is not convenient. The paper money idea is spreading rapidly.

The question is, WHAT IS BACK OF THE PAPER? Gold is only a fetish, not half enough of it in the whole world to pay half of the United States savings banks deposits. But a fetish, graveyard rabbit's foot, or "gold standard" can be very precious.

Mitchell Tax 'Deal' With Agent Denied

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Emphatic denial that Charles E. Mitchell "had any dealings" with the International Revenue Bureau agents who examined his income tax returns was made today by Max D. Steuer, defense counsel, in his summation at the trial of the former head of the National City Bank for income tax evasion.

Steuer protested vigorously against "the intimation by the government" that Mitchell had influenced Amprose Hussey, field examiner of the Internal Revenue Bureau, who examined Mitchell's income tax returns over a period of years.

The government, in presenting its case, had shown that after Hussey was transferred from the downtown district to the uptown district of the bureau, Mitchell had filed his returns thereafter from his uptown residence instead of his office downtown.

Steuer added that if there had been anything wrong with Hussey's report on Mitchell's income tax returns his superior officers could have asked for further information. He shouted:

"And this was never done."

Follies Beauty, Jilted By Ex-Husband, Fights

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—(AP.)—Helen Lee Worthing, whose blonde tresses once graced Ziegfeld's Follies, slipped off an eastbound train at a station a few miles out of Los Angeles last Thursday because she didn't like the idea of being sent away by her former husband, Eugene C. Nelson, Negro physician.

Such was her explanation today of her sudden disappearance which led Dr. Nelson to notify police she might have leaped or fallen from the train. She said:

"Dr. Nelson asked me to marry him again. A week ago last Saturday I moved my things to a place he had rented, and I worked from morning until night fixing it up. Then last Thursday he suddenly announced we couldn't get along and I'd better go.

"I was too dumbfounded to do anything. The next thing I knew, I was on the train, bound for New York. Why should I be sent away like that, with only $50 in my purse?

"So I got off the train at Pasadena, and I've come back to see how this tragic thing can be straightened out. At least, I want my belongings from the house."

She averred that she loved the doctor when she married him, that she still loved him, but, she added:

"My mentality has been questioned. Everything possible has been done, it seems to me, to get rid of me. I can't stand for that."

The 25-year-old former actress said she planned to see her attorney and arrange a conference with the doctor.

SILENT HOUSE HOLDS SECRET OF TUB DEATH

Novelist Finds Sinister Mystery Shrouds Tragedy's Trail

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Elenore Meherin, noted writer, in today's article on the Stanford University bathtub murder case, describes the house in which the beautiful university woman met death.)

By ELENORE MEHERIN
Author of "Chickie" and Other Popular Novels
International News Service.

SAN JOSE, Cal., June 19.—Does a house retain impressions of the dead—shadow-thoughts that haunt the silent walls?

This is written in a home where tragedy has stalked. This is written in Allene Lamson's living room. The mementoes of her life; the clues to her shocking death are everywhere. Nothing solves. Everything but adds to the baffling and sinister mystery.

Could Allene Lamson have died from accident?

Could a prowler have entered?

Must death be charged to the husband?

ROOM OF DEATH

You stand in the most diminutive bathroom and note the arrangement of the double faucets—two pair of them, one 12 inches above the other—stout metal faucets. Yes, a violent fall against those fixtures could result in death.

You note that door to the left of the patio, quite removed from the service yard where David Lamson was working. A prowler could easily have entered.

Then you look at the young husband's picture. It's on Allene's bureau. As you enter the room, the steadfast, straight-glancing eyes confront you, youth and sweetness uppermost. This is the man charged with the crime. It's unreal—unbelievable as a nightmare.

This is a lovely little house—tiny, compact, sufficient. Just five years ago today, on June 18, 1928, David and Allene Lamson came here in the happiness of their young marriage. The house is set in a great garden under the trees of the Stanford University campus from which both were graduated and with which both were working.

BUTTERFLIES AND TRAGEDY

There are fruit trees, shrubs and palms along a patio wall. A green, velvety lawn, a table with an immense garden umbrella, birds singing and gauzy yellow butterflies winging about in a bath of golden sun.

Only happiness—only a summer's idyll belongs in this place. Allene should be here playing with her pretty child and waiting for a laughing, gallant mate. That's the way it was a little while ago when the Lamsons were the idol of the Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity. They were the chaperones of David's fraternity and the cynical college youngsters reading Balzac and scoffing at marriage used to say:

"Yes—but look at Dave and Allene!"

How did monstrous tragedy come upon that pair?

The defense, from present indications and its own positive statement, will say:

"By accident!"

The accident theory—that Allene slipped and fell in the bathtub—was generally accepted in the beginning, at least by every friend of the young couple.

CHARGE 'LOVE QUARREL'

But how then explain the blood on the trapdoor; on the ceiling in the hall; on the walls of the nursery closet?

The prosecution, from its preliminary testimony, indicates it will claim a love quarrel. Perhaps that the pair scuffled from room to room in the tiny house. But the autopsy has shown that each blow was sufficient to bring unconsciousness.

No matter what solution you favor, there's no explaining the blood on the hall ceiling and the blood on the trap door.

There isn't a single question in the Lamson case that has a logical answer. The whole thing is insane and shot with dark, fantastic mystery.

GUARD PRINCE AFTER THREAT

LAUSANNE, Switzerland, June 19.—(AP.)—Threats against the Prince of the Asturias, made in a letter, caused a heavy guard to be thrown about his hotel today. Police were ordered to maintain a constant watch and to take every measure to protect the Prince and Edelmira Sampedro, Cuban commoner whom he will marry Wednesday.

The incident increased the Prince's sadness over the continued opposition of his parents, the former King and Queen of Spain, to the marriage. The ceremony remains fixed for Wednesday, with the civil service in the morning and the religious rites later in the day.

Spokesmen for the Spanish royal family have made it clear that the marriage entails surrender by the Prince of his claims to the throne.

Last week there were reports that the royal family's opposition to the match was lessening, but yesterday it was said the Prince had received a letter from his mother expressing disapproval.

ROSENBLATT, CANTOR, DIES

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP.)—Relatives of Josef Rosenblatt, noted American cantor, were informed today that he had died of apoplexy at 3 a. m., in Palestine. He was 51 years old.

Members of the family said that burial probably would be in Palestine.

Cantor Rosenblatt was in Jerusalem to star in a motion picture. He was active all day yesterday at the Wailing Wall, the Dead Sea and the River Jordan for the last scenes of the picture. The film was completed.

During his sojourn in Jerusalem he gave several concerts on behalf of Russian Jewry. He began his career as a singer in Austria, and before he was 12 he was known throughout Europe and was the support of his family. He came to the United States to be cantor of the First Hungarian Congregation, Ohab Zadek, in New York.

SCIENTISTS AIR NEW VICTORY OVER ATOM

Harnessing of Power Would Put Coal, Oil in Discard

By LEIGH MATTESON
International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 19.—New methods of releasing tremendous atomic energies and the breakdown of old barriers between living and non-living matter were announced today at the opening session of the Century of Progress meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Production of alpha-particle energies of 12,600,000 volts by the bombardment of lithium atoms with protons of only 300,000 volts was announced by Drs. Gilbert N. Lewis, M. Stanley Livingston and Ernest O. Lawrence, of the University of California.

NEW HYDROGEN ATOM

The explosion of the lithium atoms was accomplished by use of the nuclei of the recently discovered heavy hydrogen atom.

The nucleus of the new hydrogen atom, or isotope, is about twice as heavy as the nucleus of the usual hydrogen atom. Use of the heavier nuclei as projectiles with which to hit and disrupt lithium atoms thus brought about effects similar to those when a 12-inch gun is used instead of a six-inch gun, in firing at an object.

The physicists asserted that all that now stands in their way of making atomic energy available for human production and distribution use are means of making a majority of direct hits on atoms with their projectiles.

POWER PRODUCTION

Once this obstacle is overcome all present-day power production methods, such as those employing fuels like coal and oil, or the force of water pressure, will be discarded as outrageously inefficient.

For with means of releasing atomic energy at hand, a piece of coal the size of a walnut would drive the biggest liner around the world.

The description of how new instruments are breaking down old distinctions between living and non-living matter was given by Prof. James W. McBain, of Stanford University.

He told how investigators had found that living organisms had survived under the terrific pressure of 10,000,000 times the force exerted by gravity on the earth, thus demonstrating that life may exist on such a huge planet as Neptune if enough heat is felt at the orb's surface.

STAGE HEIRESS WEDS EDITOR

NEW YORK, June 19.—(Universal.)—Betty Randolph, Broadway's $3,000,000 heiress, was married to Paul C. Sweinhart, an editor, yesterday, just seven weeks after she fell while playing handball on her penthouse roof and fractured her spine.

In the same sports roadster, in which she used to make the headlines by speeding at an 80-mile-an-hour clip, the rich former Follies girl rode to Jersey City and back at 15 miles an hour out of deference to a still wobbly vertebrae.

The couple were married in Jersey City by Judge Edward Markley.

It was the first marital adventure for Sweinhart, who is 45. Miss Randolph, 33, had been married three times previously.

Lie Swapping Party Near For State's Paul Bunyans

Old-Time Woodsmen Meeting to Re-Live Romantic Era

BROOKVILLE, Pa., June 19.—(AP.)—Full of tall tales and armed with figurative canthooks and axes, the "Paul Bunyans" of an almost-forgotten era gather this week to live again the days of log rafting on Pennsylvania's rivers.

Brawny, sturdy "he-men," in spite of their advancing years, and now organized as the Old-Time Raftsmen and Lumbermen of Northwestern Pennsylvania, they meet Thursday in Cook Forest for their annual reunion.

"Routine business," that bugaboo of most reunions, is taboo at this meeting, with the decks cleared for the real action—"swappin' lies."

And their stories are the tallest of tall tales, yarns concocted in the tradition of Paul Bunyan himself, that legendary figure of the great woods who felled a tree with one stroke of the ax, killed a giant blue ox with a blow of his fist, and ate 100 flapjacks for breakfast and then called for the fifth gallon of coffee.

A collection of rafting tools, old prints and pictures and model rafts will be on display, but the chief interest will be in a monster volume of river and rafting tales—the tall tales of robust "Paul Bunyans" who lived and worked and fought and drank in Pennsylvania's great forests and on its rushing streams.

The stories go back to the nineteenth century when the cry for timber took thousands of men into the Northwestern Pennsylvania forests. All through the winter they felled trees, sawed them and then dragged them through the snow to the Clarion and Upper Allegheny rivers.

As the spring thaws came and the ice broke, the logs were toppled into the full streams, there to be lashed together into giant rafts.

Then came the most dangerous work of all getting those rafts down the turbulent streams.

Maneuvering of the cumbersome rafts, heroic work when jams occurred, getting the logs lashed together again after a raft broke—these are the tales the raftsmen tell, embellished with all the glamour of an heroic age.

MATTERN HUNT BALKED BY FOG

NOME, Alaska, June 19.—(INS.)—Arctic fog today balked the search for Jimmy Mattern, American round-the-world flier, missing since he hopped off from Khabarovsk, Siberia, Wednesday, in an effort to fly the hazardous 2,400-mile route to Nome.

Acting under orders from Washington, United States naval vessels prepared to search isolated islands in the Bering Sea for some trace of the missing aviator as soon as weather conditions would permit.

Mattern's plane did not carry radio equipment.

Ensign William Moffett, Jr., son of the late rear admiral, was prepared to head the search for Mattern when the fog and low clouds lifted.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., June 19.—(INS.)—Mrs. James Mattern, pretty blonde wife of the missing round-the-world flier, "knows" her husband is safe on some tiny island in the Bering Sea.

Wearied by the long six-day vigil for some encouraging word from the Far North, Mrs. Mattern said today:

"I just can't believe anything has happened. I am keeping faith with my promise to him not to worry."

DEPOT SLAYERS ELUDE POLICE

KANSAS CITY, June 19.—(AP.)—Federal agents and police today sought a definite lead on which to pursue their hunt for the slayers of four officers in front of the Union Station here Saturday.

Officers were still divided as to the motive—whether it was an effort to "rub out" or free Frank Nash, Oklahoma train robber and ex-convict, who was slain with the officers who guarded him.

Most of them, however, believe it was an effort to effect the escape of the notorious outlaw, who was captured in Hot Springs Ark., Friday and was being returned to the Leavenworth Penitentiary.

A report that men resembling the description of the slayers had been seen near the Leavenworth Penitentiary Sunday sent officers and prison guards on a search, but they found no one.

Additional federal investigators have been sent here to aid in the capture of the slayers, their number still in dispute, so sudden did they ambush seven officers.

KILLER TELLS SLEUTH PAIR AIDED HIM

Huge Crowd at Jail Hastens Transfer By Armed Guard

The great doors at Western Penitentiary clanged behind John Maug and Edward Turpack for a second time today.

They were back within the lofty stone walls down which they had slid to freedom seven weeks ago. They faced a year of virtually solitary confinement as a punishment for their break.

The two gangsters, captured last Thursday in a Cleveland suburb, were recommitted today by Judge Samuel H. Gardner to resume serving life terms.

TELLS OF AID

A rapidly growing crowd at the jail hastened their removal to the penetentiary by half an hour.

Handcuffed to deputy sheriffs, sped to prisno in the sherif's patral and trailed by a car carrying armed deputies and detectives.

City Detective Frank Morgan said the two admitted to him on the way that they had been aided to a Baldwin Township hideout by Walter Swisher and Clyde Kerns, soon to go on trial.

Morgan quoted Maug as saying:

Morgan also said Maug told him that he and Turpac had read newspapers daily to find out what the police were doing. They denied binding and robbing a Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation watchman and other robberies blamed on them by detectives.

QUIZZED ON HOLDUPS

The pair jested as they were led from jail handcuffed to county detectives across the Bridge of Sighs to be arraigned before Judge Gardner.

District Attorney A. T. Park questioned them concerning robberies in Pittsburgh following their prison break, April 27. They denied knowing anything about the holdups

While posing for photographs, Park asked them about their capture in Cleveland last Thursday. Maug said:

"How the hell could we shoot when we were covered?"

Lamson's 'Own Story' To Be Told by Sleuth

SAN JOSE, Cal., June 19.—(INS.)—Just after the classic peace of Memorial Day on the Stanford University campus was shattered by the strange bathtub slaying of beautiful Allene Thorpe Lamson, her darkeyed husband, David A. Lamson, told and re-told several times a story to Deputy Sheriff Howard Buffington.

That story, the foundation of the murder case which the state is attempting to build against the handsome 30-year-old Stanford publishing house executive, was slated to be revealed here today when Lamson's preliminary hearing is resumed before Justice of the Peace Grandin H. Miller.

The officer, bluff, sympathetic, known as the "father Confessor" of the sheriff's office and "Cop a Plea" Buffington, is scheduled to take the witness stand and relate all that Lamson said to him in the two hours the pair conversed in the Lamson's campus bungalow following the discovery of Mrs. Lamson's nude body, with head bludgeoned, in the tub.

Prosecuting attorneys have declared that their "strong points" against the university man are asserted "discrepancies and contradictions in his story."

Astor Widow May Halt Reno Divorce Suit

By CAROL CROSS
International News Service.

RENO, Nev., June 19.—The former Mrs. John Jacob Astor, who came here to divorce William K. Dick, today was "so upset" over reports that she planned to marry Enzo Fiermonte, handsome young Italian, who is companion and tutor of her two sons, that she probably will return East within a few days, she declared today.

Residing in a comfortable log cabin high on a hilltop overlooking Lake Tahoe, Mrs. Dick revealed that the publicity which has attended her trip to Reno has led her to "think very seriously" of abandoning her idea of taking advantage of Nevada's quick divorce laws.

Mrs. Dick denied emphatically she ever had planned to marry Fiermonte.

She said:

"He is just a nice boy. He met my sons when we were coming over to America on a steamship last year."

Fiermonte had characterized reports of a romance with Mrs. Dick as "crazy."

Mrs. Dick said:

"You are authorized to say that I will probably return East in a few days and file suit for divorce in some other state. It may or may not be New York. I was assured when I came here that everything would be quiet. However, there have been so many horrible things said that I don't know what to do."

HINDENBURG'S FAITH IN NAZIS SHAKEN

Hitler Would Put Children In Nazis' Care

BERLIN, June 19.—(AP.)—Chancellor Hitler has sternly warned German parents that their children will be taken away and put under the government's wing if they are not brought up to be good Nazis.

The warning was set forth at Erfurt yesterday, where the Chancellor addressed 120,000 persons, 60,000 of them members of his storm troops. He said:

"Youth is our future. If the older generation cannot get accustomed to us we will take away the children and rear them in our spirit."

Premier Julius Goemboes, of Hungary, the Chancellor's guest, was present. He received an ovation and signed Erfurt's golden book.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Universal Service.

LONDON, June 19.—Germany's 85-year-old president, Field Marshal Paul von Hindenburg, is convinced of Adolf Hitler's sincerity, admits the Chancellor's courage, determination and energy, but is depressed over what he considers the almost hopelessness of the gigantic task Hitler has undertaken—the making of a new Germany.

A personal friend of the President's who saw him just before he left Berlin and has since visited Von Hindenburg at his farm in Naudek, where the President withdrew apparently in broken health, has just quietly slipped in and out of London. He said that Von Hindenburg, in one of his dispirited moments, declared:

"I wish I could die—but if I die, what then? I cannot die yet. I must see it through."

SEES NO PROGRESS

The President, according to this informant, feels that, aside from obliterating state frontiers and putting down many political parties, the Hitler government is making no noticeable progress in solving the basic problems of Germany and is in danger of being crushed by the almost solid weight of public opinion aroused against Germany by her Jewish and Austrian policies.

Von Hindenburg is said to feel that if things go wrong all will again fall upon his shoulders—those of a weary old man. He is said to fear that if Hitler goes down chaos will follow.

The President is reported grievously disappointed at Vice Chancellor Von Papen's failure to hold the Nazis in check. He is allegedly much worried over growing radical tendencies; especially does he dislike Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's Minister of Propaganda.

The President is furthermore said to look with ill ease on the steadily diminishing influence of the German National party in the government and its numerical disappearance as it is swallowed up by Nazis.

HOLDS VON NEURATH

He has unshaken confidence in the sanity and clearness of vision of Minister of Foreign Affairs von Neurath, but is said to realize that Von Neurath is unable to accomplish anything at present. Von Neurath is declared remaining at his post only because of personal loyalty to the President. He was allegedly deterred from resigning recently by this bitter remark from Von Hindenburg:

"Even you want to desert the old man."

The picture painted of the President is that of a sad old man trying to serve his country to the last breath and worrying about what is to come after him.

At Neudeck, Von Hindenburg's only guard is a village detective. He is reported recovering after a fortnight's rest at his farm. He takes a half hour walk in the morning followed by an hour's sleep in the afternoon. If the weather permits he then drives in a two-horse carriage. He is revered by the people who rejoice that:

HITLER CABINET BREAK LOOMS

By HUDSON HAWLEY
International News Service.

BERLIN, June 19.—The first serious break in the cabinet of Chancellor Adolf Hitler threatened today with increasing indications Dr. Alfred Hugenberg, minister of economics and agriculture, would be obliged to resign.

The Chancellor, it was learned, is furious over the memorandum handed to the World Economic Conference by Hugenberg last week, in which he demanded the world recognize Germany's right to colonial expansion.

Hugenberg's startling bid for the recreation of a German colonial empire in Africa or elsewhere led to an immediate and heated rejoinder from Soviet Russia.

Tragedy Pursues Merchant in W. Va.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., June 19.—(AP.)—Howard H. Carrico started a general store. It burned down the second day. Next he fell asleep in a chair and his small daughter took $50 out of his pocket and threw it into a grate fire. Then he fell off a train and was injured.

Now he's in a hospital with a fractured skull. He fell downstairs while sleepwalking.

BERLIN GREETS AMERICANS

BERLIN, June 19.—(AP.)—Heinrich Sahm, Lord Mayor of Berlin, today welcomed a group of 20 American municipal officers who are visiting Germany under the auspices of the Oberlaender Trust. The Lord Mayor assured the Americans that nothing is farther from German thought than war. He said:

"War, even in the most favorable event, would entail an irretrievable loss of valuable national energies."

Concerning the Jewish problem he asserted:

"This has been the cause of much excessive and feverish excitement in America. In Berlin, as everywhere in Germany, Jews can follow their occupations peacefully and undisturbed. Nowhere will you meet pogram-like occurrences."

Button Saves Man Shot During Fight

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., June 19.—(INS.)—Thanks to a button, Thomas Paladino, 27, of Pittston, is alive today.

While playing cards shortly before last midnight he endaged in a dispute with Frank Veria, 36, and the latter pulled a revolver, according to police. A shot glanced off a button on Paladino's clothing and inflicted a superficial chest wound. Veria disappeared.

MONETARY ROW THREATENS PARLEY

used if and when a final agreement is reached.

U. S. STANDS FIRM

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP.)—The United States considers monetary stabilization an important item before the world economic conference, but does not believe it should be held up as the keystone topic of the parley.

The attitude of the American government was explained at the Treasury today, where it was said no new plan had reached Washington since the one rejected last week by President Roosevelt.

It was emphasized that this government was not trying to minimize the importance of currency stabilization, but felt this was only one of the many things which should be considered in a general scheme of settling the world economic ills.

The belief was expressed that the London conference should see that nations revise their monetary system, along with action to place their budgets on a sound basis and act on tariff and disarmament proposals.

This government, it was said, is not taking any attitude whatsoever on the question of stabilization of currency but does not yet see where any great benefit would accrue from a temporary stabilization.

The attitude of the American government was explained by Dean Acheson, Acting secretary of the Treasury. He said the American delegates at the conference had received definite instructions from the President.

U. S. Suggests Silver Plan to Conference

LONDON, June 19.—(INS.)—A comprehensive plan to ease money conditions and restore silver to a certain amount of general circulation was placed before the World Economic Conference today by Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada, long a champion of silver.

Formally setting forth a proposal first disclosed by International News Service while the American delegation was en route to London, Senator Pittman proposed that gold coverage of currency be reduced to 25 per cent, from the current rate of 40 per cent.

Pittman's suggestion had as its basis the proposal that the central banks of the world draw up a general agreement to reorganize metallic currency coverage. He urged re-monetization of silver to 800-1,000 fine.

In order to stimulate use of silver and guard against its debasement he proposed the central banks agree to increase silver coins in circulation and cease melting them down.

Miller was captured by police early today as he slept in the home of a friend in suburban Evanston.

FRANCE TOLD TO CLEAR UP DEFAULT

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Official notification was served on France today that it must clear up its default on the December and June debt payments before this government will grant it any review of the entire debt situation.

Acting American Secretary of State Phillips informed Andre de Laboulaye, French Ambassador, that President Roosevelt is not prepared to grant France a hearing until it has paid in full the $19,000,000 on which it defaulted last December and made at least a partial payment of the $40,000,000 on which it also defaulted June 15.

FRANCE STUNNED

Stunned by the blunt warning from this government that it will be granted no review of the debt situation until it clears up the default on the December and June payments, the French government sent its ambassador to the State Department to seek further information.

Admitting that the debt situation between the United States and France had reached an "impasse" as a result of this government's pay-up notice, the French ambassador said on his arrival that his visit was for the purpose of seeking information. He added he was not bringing any proposal.

Following his conversation with Phillips, De la Boulaye admitted that the Acting Secretary had made it clear that this government did not feel it could grant any review until the defaults had been cleared up.

BELGIAN ENVOY CALLS

Immediately after De la Boulaye left, M. Paul May, Belgian ambassador, called at the department. Although he admitted he called in connection with the debt situation, May refused to comment further regarding his visit.

Later, Ambassador Patek, of Poland, also visited the acting secretary.

Meanwhile, it was revealed that President Roosevelt intends to start debt talks late in July with nations which have honored their obligations.

Race's Last Warrior Dies in New Zealand

AUCKLAND, N. Z., June 19.—(AP.)—Solomon, last of the ancient Moriori race, is dead. Peace-loving Morioris inhabited New Zealand before the coming of the Maoris, a war-like race. The newcomers easily conquered the Morioris, eating some, enslaving others.

Eventually a remnant of the Morioris escaped to the Chatham Islands off the coast. All went well until less than a hundred years ago a party of 800 Maoris raided the Chathams and massacred hundreds. After this there was an influenza epidemic.

Herron to Propose New Police Station

Proposals for the reopening of the Woods Run Police Station will be presented to City Council today, Mayor John S. Herron indicated yesterday. Residents of the district have been protesting since the closing of the station several months ago. Nine men—two wagonmen and a sergeant on each of three turns—will be necessary to operate the station, Police Supt. Franklin T. McQuaide told the Mayor.

Ohio Egg Dealer Fined, to Appeal

Ernest C. Shaw, 36, an egg peddler from Trumbull County, O., was fined $50 by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg today in Central Police Court. Paul O. Mehlman, an investigator for the Pittsburgh Butter and Egg Exchange, accused Shaw of selling eggs without a license.

Shaw, who had been fined previously on a similar charge, according to police, maintained he was filling orders sent his employer, H. W. Scheidiger. His attorney, Robert H. Braun, Jr., announced he would take the case to court.

MEDICOS HERE TO REVEAL HOBBIES

The secrets of many a doctor's life—his hobby—will be bared to fellow physicians tomorrow night.

The secrets will be non-medical, mostly cultural. Their handiwork and the result of their hobbies will be shown at the monthly meeting of the Allegheny County Medical Society in the Hotel Schenley.

Exhibits will range from bullets to butterflies.

Drs. Leo H. Criep, William A. Bradshaw and Ralph V. Robinson are arranging the party. Included in the show will be oil and water color paintings; rare first editions and other books noted for their binding; pet photographs and hand-made furniture; collections of butterflies, guns, manuscripts and more.

Dr. W. J. McGregor will have a ballistic display.

Speakers will be Dr. Russel J. Ferguson, associate professor of history at the University of Pittsburgh, and the Rev. Dr. Clarence F. Macartney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church.

SPEED BANKS' REOPENING

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP.)—Two groups had joined today in a nation-wide movement to seek speedy reopening of closed banks.

Vincent Bendix, president of the Bendix Aviation Corporation, representing the directing committee of the Committee for the Nation, and Frank H. Schrenk, Philadelphia banker, representing the National Depositors' Committee, of which he is chairman, will serve on a joint committee for reopening banks.

Other members of the joint committee will be announced later. A. Mitchell Palmer, former attorney general and counsel for the National Depositors' Committee, will act also for the joint committee. A statement said:

"It should be emphasized that neither of the two organizations is in favor of opening unsound banks. But both recognize that bank deposits constitute the nation's important medium of exchange, and that restoration of prosperity is dependent largely upon releasing the purchasing power which remains paralyzed in some 5,000 closed banks with deposits approximating $5,000,000,000."

COURT OUSTS TOWNSHIP MAN

Three Common Pleas judges today decided on petition of District Attorney Andrew T. Park that Ross Township Commissioner James W. Johnston has no right to his office.

Johnston had been convicted of illegally acting as overseer at the polls in the 1931 elections.

At the request of township taxpayers, Park asked Judges James H. Gray, Elder W. Marshall and John P. Egan to declare him disqualified to hold office. The court's decision will act as an ouster.

Johnston claimed he was qualified because his offense wasn't malicious.

He had been convicted of a postal law violation sometime ago, but was parole by a federal judge.

PETTER BANDIT GETS 25 YEARS

Arthur Mooney, 32, known as the petter bandit, who occupied a houseboat in the Monongahela River near Brown's Bridge, was sentenced to serve from 25 to 50 years in Western Penitentiary by Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff today.

He was found guilty of robbing Robert Heintzelman, 29, of St. Clair drive, Mt. Lebanon, and attacking a young woman in Frick Woods, May 3.

He was also held guilty of robbing Edward Hefferman, 910 Locust street, in Frick Woods, April 13.

The fireworks program will be made up of a wide variety of features, from comic strip characters cutting capers to battle scenes on land, air and sea. The battle scene tonight will be that of St. Mihiel in which soldiers, tanks and airplanes will be seen in action in a most realistic battle. The program is repeated two nights when a new program is given.

Tonight and tomorrow night will be known as Presidents' Day. Wednesday and Thursday as Fraternal Day and Fort Pitt Day, when the Battle of the Seas will be depicted.

Friday will be known as Abraham Lincoln Day and Saturday as American Legion Day. The Battle of the Argonne, in which many Pittsburgh district men took part, will be the big feature display Friday and Saturday nights. Tickets may be obtained from trainmen of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, department stores and at the park gates.

VET PAY TESTS SET FOR JULY

WASHINGTON, June 18.—(AP.)—Plans to set up boards early in July to review cases of veterans whose disabilities are presumed to have originated in the service were being laid today by the Veterans' Administration, to carry out the Roosevelt program for liberalizing benefits to former soldiers from the reductions made by the economy law.

Veterans' administration officials, who have worked almost constantly since Friday to prepare the program attached to the independent offices supply bill by Congress, explained they have been too busy to get down to exact details.

They could not say whether the reviewing boards would be set up in each state or by areas or what the procedure would be, other than to express the opinion the boards would automatically review each presumptive case before the veteran was dropped from the compensation rolls rather than each veteran having to apply for a review.

GIMBELS—A MILLION DOLLARS IN JUNE

BREWER TELLS OWN STORY OF KIDNAPING

(Editor's Note—The following story was written exclusively for the Associated Press by William Hamm, millionaire president of the Theodore Hamm Brewing Company, in recounting his experiences while held nearly four days by kidnapers who originally demanded $100,000 ransom.)

By WILLIAM HAMM

ST. PAUL, June 19.—(AP.)—From the time I was kidnaped by two men and another man, who was driving their automobile shortly after noon last Thursday, I never was abused. They treated me kindly all the time.

I was surprised as two men came up to me about 12:45 p. m. last Thursday. One of them said, "Hello, Mr. Hamm," and, after shaking hands one grabbed me on each side and they put me into a car.

They were not rough with me but, well, they convinced me I ought to go. I had only a fleeting impression of the two men's appearances, although one of them resembled Verne Sankey. I couldn't be sure, of course.

Poked With Gun

I didn't take particular notice of the kind of car I was put in. I'm not up on all the automobiles. I didn't see any guns, but I felt one aagnist me during the ride out of town.

When I entered the car, they made me lie on the bottom of the automobile after putting a white hood over my eyes. I am not surew hich way they headed out of town.

I couldn't say how long a drive wt took, but it seemed about eight hours. And the same time coming back today when three men again were in the car with me. There wasn't very much conversation during the ride back.

After we had gone about 30 miles out of St. Paul we stopped and met another car. There were several men in it. There I signed four ransom notes while laying on the bottom of the machine.

Cotton Over Eyes

Then they took off the hood and placed some goggles over my eyes. They were taken off just before we pulled up to the house where I was held. I couldn't recognize any of the country we went through because I had those goggles on my eyes all the time and they were covered inside with cotton.

Finally, after I had been driven quite a long time, we stopped at a house. It was a two-story house somewhere in Northern Minnesota. The windows were boarded up.

It was dark. There was a light in the room where I was put. The room was furnished simply and the house looked like a farmhouse or city home. It might have been a farmhouse on the outskirts of the city. I heard traffic noises.

Treated 'Nicely'

They came in to see me in the room any time I wanted anything. I called them when I wanted something and they treated me nicely. I asked for anything I wanted and ordered anything I wanted.

It is hard to say how old the men were, for I got only fleeting glimpses of them. Every time they came into the room I had to turn my face to the war or face the side opposite from the kidnapers.

I believe there were five or six men altogether.

They kept me informed as to the progress of the negotiations. Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock they came up and told me they had some "good news." That was that the ransom money had been paid. I don't even know how much money was paid. I had good simple meals during my imprisonment, nothing elaborate.

Traveled by Night

That night, Sunday, we started out after dark, two men, the driver and myself. They put the goggles back on me and after another ride they left me out at Wyoming on the main highway. I had some money. They made no effort to take it from me while I was a prisoner. They didn't say anything after letting me go and it was kind of dark so I couldn't see what kind of a car was used.

I landed in Wyoming early this morning and there I called my home. It was about 5:30 in the morning then. Oh, yes, the men did say something when they let me out. One said:

"If there is anything we can do to help you, Mr. Hamm, just let us know."

After a little while the police came and took me home. I never saw a newspaper while I was held prisoner and I didn't hear any conversations about any other kidnapings.

I don't think I could find the place where I was held prisoner. I am happy to be home again.

KANSAS KIDNAP PAIR CAUGHT IN VIRGINIA

International News Service.

LYNCHBURG, Va., June 19.—Two men wanted in connection with the abduction of Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of the city manager of Kansas City, are under arrest in two Virginia cities, authorities were convinced today, as Missouri officers sped eastward with descriptions furnished by the Kansas City girl.

The men are Howard E. Wilson, under arrest at Lynchburg, and George McGee, held at Roanoke, 60 miles away.

The pair was apprehended late Saturday because of the suspicions of a Roanoke detective, after McGee was arreseted on a charge of drunkenness.

Wilson, after a rapid courtship, had married Miss Frances Spencer, a Lynchburg girl, only last Friday. When police searched his home they found two sub-machine guns, four large caliber pistols, several hundred rounds of ammunition, three bullet-proof vests and a pair of handcuffs. He did not admit any connection with the Kansas City abduction.

At Roanoke, McGee, after questioning by Detective R. C. Johnson, admitted complicity in the abduction. After his arrest on a drunkenness charge, McGee attempted to obtain bond and was asked for references. He gave the name of Wilson at Lynchburg. After Wilson was apprehended, and the miniature arsenal found, McGee was faced with the information and then admitted his part in the crime after a comparison of fingerprints.

McGee said he had received $1,500 of the $30,000 ransom paid by City Manager McElroy. Detectives said McGee implicated his brother, Walter, and a fourth man named Glick. The two latter, he said, were ringleaders in the plot.

WEST IN GRIP OF HEAT WAVE

CHICAGO, June 19.—(INS.)—Another day of sweltering heat settled over the Middle West today as plains and cities baked in temperatures which in some sections shattered all-time records for June.

Government forecasters predicted that the mercury would bound to new heights before sunset today. Although some relief was in sight within the next 24 hours, meteorologists offered no promise of rain for the parched plains.

In the Northwest, June records were broken when the temperature reached 106 at Bismarck, N. D., and 104 at Devil's Lake. Moorhead, Minn., reported 104.

Cooling breezes from the lake brought some relief to Chicago yesterday, as the temperature soared to an official mark of 91. Forecasters promised that it would be 95 here before nightfall today.

MOTHER TELLS OF PEGGY'S KIDNAPING

BARNSTABLE, Mass., June 19. (AP.)—Mrs. Margaret McMath, mother of Margaret (Peggy) McMath, took the stand in Barnstable Superior Court today to tell her story of her daughter's kidnaping.

Kenneth and Cyril Buck, Harwichport brothers, are on trial charged with the crime.

Mrs. McMath, in a firm voice, told the court of the events of May 2, the day on which the child was abducted from the Harwich Center Grammar School.

She told of the telephone call she received from a man representing himself to be a lineman of a telephone company, who asked her to take the receiver from her telephone and leave it off for 10 minutes.

DRIVES TO SCHOOL

Mrs. McMath testified she first became concerned about "Peggy" when the school bus returned at the end of the school day and "Peggy" did not get off. She said she drove to the school, learned the child had been allowed to leave earlier, and then demanded the police be called. She said the local police were called first and then, at her "urgent request," the state police. She said she later called her home and asked that Neil C. McMath, her husband, come to the school at once. She said he came "very quickly."

Mrs. McMath said she later later telephoned to her father, William P. Kales in Detroit. She made three calls to Detroit on the same day from the home of Ralph Snow, local banker.

She said it was on May 4 that the ransom money was delivered to her home.

Mrs. McMath testified that her first reunion with her daughter after she was returned by the kidnaper, was aboard the cruiser "Bob," in Wychmere Harbor on May 5, just before dawn. She said:

"I knew that I was to have a sight of my child that night."

RETURN OF 'PEGGY'

She told of her trip to the "Bob" in the darkness. She rowed in a flat bottom boat, with Cyril Buck and William Lee.

Mrs. McMath appeared emotional as she told of the meeting with her only daughter.

Peggy's blue tin lunch box, which figured in the ransom negotiations, was identified by Mrs. McMath. She said she first saw it when her husband brought it home with notes from Peggy.

Mrs. McMath denied that she saw her husband being questioned by police at the base ship at Woodshole the night after the child was returned. She said she was concerned mostly with getting Peggy home for she was "tired."

Let Age Rule Books, Says Lagerlof, 75

STOCKHOLM, June 19.—(AP.)—Dr. Selma Lagerlof, celebrated Swedish author, who will be 75 this year, thinks writers might do well to consider their age when they pick up their pens. She said:

"Let the tempestuous feelings of youth ring into lyrics, the enterprising and active spirit of middle age be transformed into drama and epics and, finally, the experience and wisdom of old age be expressed by descriptions of realities."

BREWER FREED BY KIDNAPERS

mobile according to the kidnapers' instructions.

Unharmed and in the best of health, Hamm related his experiences to city, county and federal officials. Though he at first believed he had been imprisoned in a house in Northern Wisconsin, he finally decided it must have been Northern Minnesota.

Three of four ransom notes he was compelled to sign while lying down in the bottom of the kidnapers' automobile, he said. During the ride out of St. Paul last Thursday after he was compelled to accompany two men and a driver in an automobile, parked near the brewery, he was forced to wear a white hood and later goggles blanketed inside with cotton.

At no time did he see any guns, although he felt one pressed against him during the ride out of St. Paul which was interrupted about 30 miles outside the city where contact was made with colleagues of the abductors. It was there that he was forced to sign the four notes.

Business men of St. Paul are contributing to a reward fund which has reached $30,000 and is expected by Howard Kahn, the trustee, to total $50,000.

Kahn, newspapermen said, that the money would be paid for information leading to capture and conviction of the kidnapers.

Hamm's kidnaping was the fourth in St. Paul in 18 months.

Haskell Bohn, 21-year-old son of Gebhard Bohn, St. Paul manufacturer, was seized June 30, 1932, from the rear of his home by two armed men. He was held captive nearly a week in a Minneapolis home before he was released on payment of $12,000.

Subsequently, Verne Sankey, his wife and Ray Robinson were indicted. Robinson was captured in Canada, and pleaded guilty. He got 25 years in prison.

Sankey, also sought for the kidnaping of Charles Boettcher II, of Denver, has not been caught, but Mrs. Sankey was arrested at Denver and tried here. A jury acquitted her last week, but she was arrested again for federal officers who want her in South Dakota for the kidnaping of Boettcher, who was held on a ranch in South Dakota.

Leon Gleckman, former convict and reputed racketeer, and Morris Rutman were abducted late in 1931. Each was released after payment of ransom.

NEW CERMAK ROMANCE SEEN

MIAMI, Fla., June 19.—(AP.)—William W. Wood, Miami salesman, and Mrs. Helena Cermak Kenlay, daughter of the late Mayor of Chicago, denied reports published here yesterday that they had been married.

Their reported romance began with the fatal shooting of Mayor Anton J. Cermak in the attempted assassination of President Roosevelt here the night of February 15.

Mrs. Kenlay, who is 28, was divorced recently in Chicago from Floyd M. Kenlay, an attorney. She has a daughter, Mary Alyce, 2.

Wood, a Democratic precinct committeeman here, was standing beside Mayor Cermak when a bullet fired by Giuseppe Zangara struck Cermak. Wood was an almost daily attendant at the hospital and there he met Mrs Kenlay.

STATE MILITIA TO HAVE CAMP

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's National Guard training camps at Mt. Gretna and Indiantown Gap are to operate as scheduled this summer.

The War Department has announced that, despite economies of $50,000,000 to be effected during the coming year, National Guard units will be given two weeks' summer training.

Armory drills, however, are to be curtailed. The extent of the cuts in drill pay has not been determined, but drills with pay probably will be limited to between 12 and 20.

The existing guard personnel will be retained.

Citizens' military training camps will be continued, but no boys who have not served at least one summer previously will be enlisted.

CHURCH MARKS ANNIVERSARY

Bishop Adna W. Leonard, of the Pittsburgh Area of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will preach in the Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church at 10:45 a. m. next Sunday, at the close of a week's observance of the fortieth anniversary of the congregation.

The cornerstone of their church was laid at Allegheny and Beech avenues on May 18, 1893, by Bishop Charles H. Fowler.

In 1919, the Union Church, which began as a Sunday School class in 1843, merged with the Calvary Church. In 1931 the Buena Vista Street Church, which was organized May 22, 1838, as the South Common Church, also joined the Calvary congregation.

The Rev. Dr. W. S. Lockard, former pastor of the Calvary Church from 1910 to 1915 and the Rev. W. S. Trosh, pastor from 1926 to 1928, will be present at the services next Sunday.

It's to be a fashion show in which all the latest in bathing suit and beach costume designs will be shown with debs and post-debs as models.

Brighton Club to Study 'Pittsburgh and World Problems' Next Year

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

A tiny cut of the Block House decorates the cover of the Brighton Women's Club new year book, appropriate insignia for the club's study topic, "Pittsburgh and World Problems." On one page is Judge Joseph Buffington's "Hymn to Pittsburgh" and the program announcements begin with plans for president's day, honoring Mrs. E. V. Weller, on October 5. At roll call the members will answer "Where have you been; what have you seen?"

Pittsburgh's historical background and "Tuning in on World Affairs" will inaugurate the actual study at the second October meeting, then in November the women will lay programs aside to conduct their annual sale for the blind, a work in which they hold a record.

Mrs. Harry G. Samson is to visit the club to tell of the women's division of the Pittsburgh Council of Churches and Miss Henrietta Gerwig is to have a paper on the city's religious life. A visit to the International Art Exhibit and the Christmas meeting will conclude the first part of the season. At the first meeting in the new year, the lives of John A. Brashear, George Westinghouse, Henry J. Heinz and William J. Holland will furnish material for one afternoon. Later there are "Waterways," "Railroads," "News of the Hour," Mary Roberts Rinehart's "My Life," "The Latimers" and a book by Elizabeth Moorhead to be discussed.

FIELD FLOWERS ON ORGANDY FOR FORMAL GARDEN PARTIES

WOMEN WHO know their fashions will go in for cottons and field flowers in a big way this summer. The point is, if you're slim and almost any age, you can wear organdy—crisp and flowered—to your heart's content.

THE RAQUEL MELLER LIKE silhouette is one you can adopt if you're "that slim way" in type. The effect is fresh, frilled and feminine. At the neckline two lovely jade clips are placed. Three huge ruffles swish at the feet, the first starting halfway below the knees, the other two growing fuller and fuller until they end in a tiny train in back, trailing lightly with each step. Something about this dress makes one think of the Rhumba, Cuban melodies, Cuban nights. Wearing it, you'll find yourself longing to dance to a tango.

THE OTHER field-flowered organdy gown was selected because the silhouette is generally becoming to every figure. Exaggerated ruffles cover the shoulder—and add lots of charm. The skirt is enormously full, yet restrained. A full bunch of vivid poppies accent the bright field flowers of the print. They look exactly as if they'd just been plucked.

FOR GARDEN parties, these dresses are ideally suitable. One is just as picturesque as the other. Especially when the romantic large cartwheel brimmed hats of the same flowered organdy are worn with them! If the picture is to be completed, there are frilled organdy gloves to match the hats and gowns.

DISCOVERY

Almost daily people tell us: "Please put back our telephone!" • Without it, they were isolated. Invitations passed them by; news escaped them. Instead of saving, they more than spent the telephone's cost on personal trips and calls from "public" telephones. • They found that the small cost of having a telephone in their home was more than repaid each month in convenience and in time and money actually saved.

Are you trying to manage without a telephone? Why deprive yourself of its convenience when you can have one in your home for less than 10 cents a day?

GOLDMAN BAND :-: Famous Summertime 'On the Mall' Concerts :-: BACK ON AIR

Frying Pan Glorified By Radio

Edwin Franko Goldman's famous "On the Mall" concerts go into their sixteenth season, broadcasting tonight with NBC-WCAE picking up at 9:30.

Another summer premiere slated for tonight is the "Evening in Paris," seasonal presentation of light dance music on a weekly schedule—WJAS at 9:30. Agnes (Nana) Moorehead continues as comedienne.

The first of a new series combining Tito Guizar, Mexican tenor, and Howard Barlow's concert orchestra is introduced over WJAS at 9:45.

Parody Man

From the stage comes Harry Fink, the Parody Man, to make his radio debut in a new Monday Wednesday show opening on NBC-KDKA at 7:15.

Effective today, Edwin C. Hill will air "The Human Side of the News" over WJAS Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 10:30 p. m., with the Friday broadcasts replacing those formerly heard Tuesday nights.

Startling is the newest thing in solo instruments introduced via NBC-KDKA at 9 by Harry Budinger, the Minstrels xylophonist, with that lowly thing, the kitchen skillet, assuming new prestige. Budinger's idea is to mount a score or so of the frying pans on a rack and make them talk with xylophone hammers...

Swedish Night

Swedish Day at the Century of Progress Exposition holds the radio spotlight for two 15-minute periods tonight—at 8:30 and 9 on KDKA and WJAS respectively.

The 8:30 broadcast features an address by Count Foulke Bernadotte, nephew of the King of Sweden, while the latter consists of native Swedish melodies by a chorus of 600.

Meet Nana

Agnes Moorehead, who clicked last winter with her portrayal of "Nana" in "Mysteries in Paris," and again in the sponsor's spring show, continues as comedienne in the summer series opening on WJAS at 9:30 o'clock tonight.

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

"I want to adopt a little boy a year or a year and a half old, blue eyes and light hair, chubby and pretty," writes a sorrowing mother.

That's the description of the lost baby for whom she grieves.

She needn't say that she will be good to any child she adopts. She couldn't be otherwise. Aside from a home the baby will have a 5-year-old brother, a sister, 3, and another sister, 10.

If you can comfort this woman as well as aid in providing a home for an unfortunate infant will you write me?

Mrs. Fred Mason—Sounds like your pup has worms. If a remedy for that is ineffective better call the veterinary.

Mrs. H. M. Reynolds, New Castle—If the government is selling land, the best source of information is the United States Department of the Interior.

Fight Fan, Homestead—Herrera won the referee's decision over Wesley Ramey.

Mary Louise Allman, Rochester—Do not have old coin catalogue. Your banker will tell you where to write.

Yesterday was Father's Day and the Anniversary of the Battle of Waterloo. Merely a coincidence.

John Krass is all for a psychological method to hasten the return of better times. For instance, he says, all school children should get together first thing in the morning and cheer, "Hurrah for Prosperity." That slogan should be a part of every radio program and advertised widely by poster and newspaper. Maybe it's a good idea. If I can borrow a dollar I'll start now:

"Hurrah for Prosperity."

'Devil's Call'

Ian Keith, British stage and screen star, who has the lead in this week's American Weekly drama, "The Devil's Call," presented over nine stations in the Pittsburgh area beginning Thursday. His role: a scheming manufacturer of ammunition.

Father Coughlin Returning, Fearless, Uncensored, To Radio in Fall

By AIRCASTER

"You may tell the radio audience that I'll be back on the air for another season October 15 on the same network and that my sermons will be as forceful as I can make them.

"You may thus correct those widely published reports that I was through with radio."

Father Coughlin

At that time, there were reports Bishop Gallagher, of Detroit, the only man who edits the Coughlin sermons, would as a matter of policy, call off the radio talks.

But it is revealed now that the orator has the full support of his bishop, and that no attempt will be made to temper the force of his eloquence when he resumes his radio talks.

Children's Hour

Father Coughlin explains:

"With the generous help of listeners, I have arranged to finance the Sunday sermons, which will consume the hour between 4 and 5 p. m., as usual, on the very same hookup, including WJAS in Pittsburgh.

"But here is another news item: I am inaugurating on the same Sunday, a children's hour, but whether this will be heard in Pittsburgh or not, I am not certain as yet. The schedule will be from 2 to 3 p. m., Sundays. My purpose is to spread the Christian doctrine to youngsters of all creeds."

O'Keefe, McCormack

This is the story as it comes to me. There were 29 of them—all directors of a business, and they were interested in sponsoring a radio program. The thirtieth member, who is an executive vice president, didn't attend the audition at NBC.

The listening 29 applauded vigorously the songs and gags of Walter O'Keefe, and the variety show, which the NBC was offering as a sample.

When O'Keefe entered the listening room at the close of the audition, the directors rose as one man and congratulated him. Somebody placed a contract blank on the table. Everything seemed sunny. The show was just what they wanted.

And then, the absentee entered and announced:

"I've done it, my friends. I've just signed John McCormack without bothering about an audition. And we're going on the Columbia network."

Thus was the directorate thrown into confusion, and so much turmoil resulted that the firm probably won't go on the air at all.

Wynn's Successor

The magic voice, which acquired much fame, partly due to the spectacular illness of Elsie Hitz, folds up within the fortnight . . .

Local Highlights on WJAS Tonight

Wermes' Saxophone Sextet begins a new schedule tonight, a quarter-hour program at 8:15.

A second change is that of the "Three Bridges," who entertain at 6:15.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Memos to a Columnist's Girl Friday

HOLLYWOOD, Cal.—Dear Ruth: You're getting careless, and don't tell me it's the excessive heat in what used to be "the only town in the world for me" . . . You must watch the punctuation as it comes over the teletype from out here. And remember that via teletype there is no lower case—all caps—and you simply have to use your own bean to decipher it . . . On the Zeppo Marx item several columns ago, frixample, I had him yelling at the ringside, "I'll take 3 to 2!" . . . You let it get by you to read 3 to 21 . . . Obviously misinterpreting the exclamation mark for a number . . . I also tagged the column of Monday, figuring you would understand, "The Clark Gables are straining at the leash again" instead of "on the verge again." Don't ignore me that way! . . In fewer words, La Belle Friday, read the proof over and over again, and don't depend on others to catch the errata . . . You merely have to read it . . . I gotta take the raps for it!

Just came from the Writers' Club luncheon. Swell group of guys and the gags came in bunches. Very much like the Dutch Treaters in New York. . Lee Shippey, a local paragrapher, made me an honorary member during the stay in California, and the president, Rupert Hughes, announced a dinner for me (inviting 150 local newspapesmen) at theis rooms on July 15th. . . Tell THAT to Variety! . . . The fact is that they never hold dinners during the summer months, but because that obviously planted inaccuracy tried to make me look like a bum—they said: "The only way to answer that—is to throw a dinner for you!" . . . So now I have to worry about a speech.

Saw Lupe Velez, with Weismuller of course . . . Don't know if the story broke in New York about her snarling and refusing to meet or talk to him when he met her plane . . . At any rate, what happened was this. The papers here front-paged that Lupe wouldn't talk to Johnny, until she was told he had brought along her niece, etc. . . . What terrified her was that she had just been air sick, as were her dogs—and she wasn't presentable for the camcramen! . . . Lupe signed with MGM yesterday, heavier wages. The contract is for five years . . . She is listed to make five flickers in six months . . . Adolph Zukor is miserable, again. The H'wood Reporter here related that Paramount was going on the auction block. Zukor denies it and argues that the bankers are trying to steal it from him, and that he has millions in cash and doesn't need them! . . . That he has millions, I wouldn't swear to . . He nailed me at the Grove and said: Oh, you! You put things in the paper about people!" . . . "When did I ever do that to you?" I said . . . "You do it to everybody, don't you?" Zukor zukored . . . "Don't worry," interrupted a clown. "He isn't down to the Z's yet!!"

You see the duckiest things here in Hollywood. . .Over most of the soda fountains on the sidewalks the neon lights: "Hot Muts!" . . . NBC Press Dep't is sending out a statement about Frances Langford, the contralto, being discovered by Rudy Vallee in a Florida boarding school. . .Ask Rudy what was he doing in a girls' boarding school?. .Long and affectionate wire from Gordon & Revel. The suggestion that Hollywood producers should engage them to write the best songs got them a job with Paramount . . . Charles Rogers, Para exec here, also wired me thanks for the tip . . . So that's two more jobs the old column promoted . . . Here's a shudder for you . . . An old actor here, broke and desperate, went out to the graveyard, had his son (buried ten years) dug up, cremated the remains, and sold the lot . . . With the receipts he went to Chicago, did the same to his wife's remains and returned here for "extra" jobs . . . His financial checkup revealed he made $22 on both deals.

Mrs. Berthold Viertel and Mercedes D'Acosta are doing all the talking and planning for Garbo, all other managers to the contrary . . . They approached a feminine socialite, much down on her luck, and inquired if she could dig up a handsome youth well bred and educated, who would act as a personal chauffeur to Greta. This man had to be able to fit himself into the moods of Garbo, he had to be able to anticipate her moods, and if the mood demanded, make love to her, walk and romp with her, or become merely a chauffeur . . . To date no applicant has been accepted! . . . Met Richy Craig, Jr., as you probably suspected from seeing his quips . . . He looks plenty healthy, and says he isn't staying up late, etc. . . . He's gagging up scripts for the better studios . . . The local actors know where to come with their troubles . . . Just now a dozen of them called at the house to moan about being fired from Grauman's Chinese Theater after two weeks of strenuous rehearsals, and after a week's work at $15, they were dismissed without notice . . . Nice goings on, what? Just like B'way.

Here's a howdeedoo. Paramount is stuck for a girl with looks and shapely shafts, who can handle torch chunes for the new Bing Crosby-J. Oakie picture. They can't find the type in Hollywood! . . . Joan Crawford still calls her ex-father-in-law "Uncle Douglas" . . . Maybe lovely lookers make me dizzy, but Adrienne Ames reminds me of Garbo more than any other woman . . . After the party Louella Parsons and Doc Martin hurled for us the other night, the lovely Billie Dovely and her new groom, Bob Kenaston, the rancher, kept me up until nearly 1 a. m! . . . What a bundle of beauty she is! . . . I'm not kidding about the routine here. I fall down about midnight and am up with the sparrows! . . . If I didn't have to resume on September 3d from the New York broadcasting studios—I swear I wouldn't return to Broadway, where most of us merely try to catch up to a hearse.

Eleanor Holm is mad about Jarrett, at that . . . She told him so I could hear—that she loves him and proposed marriage to him! Billy Wilkerson displayed some ladies' pipes (for tobacco) in his Vendome here, and the fad caught on with some of the better known stars, who now appear in public with pipes instead of ciggies . . . Mae Murray isn't so sure now that she will divorce her "prince" . . . Menjou tells people he still loves his estranged wife, but she says it is final . . . In haste, kid; the wires close early here because of the four hours' time difference.

Kruger Waits Long for Role

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 19.—After cooling his heels longer than the author in "Once in a Lifetime," Otto Kruger at last will get a chance to earn the fancy salary check he draws from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Mr. Kruger

This fine actor is to support Lee Tracy in "Turn Back the Clock" but it took a smash hit on the local stage to turn the trick.

Like Philip Merrivale at Fox, Kruger has been watching the slow weeks drag by, waiting for an assignment. Finally, M-G-M loaned him to Henry Duffy to play the lead in "Counselor-at-Law."

Both he and the play have been a sensation here. The result, foregone of course, is a complete revival of the studio's enthusiasm for him. He'll play a supporting part in the Edgar Selwyn picture. If he hits in this, the sky's the limit.

One of the funnier incidents of the week, relates Bill Goetz, occurred the other day in front of Al Levy's tavern. A pretty, but not too intellectual ingenue rushed out of the restaurant and hailed a taxi driver standing there.

"I'm engaged," he explained.

"That's fine," she gushed, "and I hope you're very happy!"

Two or three days, George Raft tells me, should see his Paramount difficulties over. He expects to sign a new contract, at a larger salary, and calling for only five pictures a year. George would prefer four.

Miss Murray

Now that she's divorcing David Mdivani, Mae Murray wants to don the greasepaint again. She says Austin Strong is writing a play for her. The blonde actress lives at the beach, refuses to have a telephone installed. Like several other stars, she has an office in town, where she transacts business.

Is this swell or not? A Hollywood writer recently sold a story to a fly-by-night producer for $150. He rushed to the bank to cash the check but discovered that the company had only $138 in its account. And then the brain wave. He made out a deposit slip in the company's favor for $12, handed over this amount to the teller and then cashed his check, closing out the account.

* * *

Those private numbers do have a way of bouncing back. Margaret Lindsay forgot her's the other evening and the operator refused to give it to her. As she had been holding out on the studio, too, she finally had to call Warner Baxter and ask him to take her home . . . Erich von Stroheim, they'll tell you, is writing those two stories of his, "Paprika" and "Poto Poto," in fiction form.

Miss Lindsay

Studios drive shrewd bargains with foreign players these days. You'd be surprised to know what Paramount is getting Dorothea Wieck for. . . A chip off the old block is Joe E. Brown's son, Junior. The boy is so enthusiastic about baseball that he is now traveling with the Mission club of the Pacific Coast League and working out with the players. No doubt, his dad would like to join him. Aside from Harry Ruby, the song-writer, Joe E. Brown is the greatest baseball fan in Hollywood.

A Santa Barbara sneak preview of Lillian Harvey's "My Lips Betray" brings Fox officials back singing praises and no little relieved. It is generally conceded that the debut of the other European find, Henry Garat, was disappointing. Here's an odd note. Property departments can supply motion picture fog effects (they're made from oil) in any desired perfume or odor.

Did you know: That Mae West is the daughter of Jack West, well known featherweight boxer of the nineties?

Busy Gal

Jean Harlow has been having a busy time of it. She recently completed "Hold Your Man," with Clark Gable, and also is cast in "Dinner at Eight," with Marie Dressler, Wallace Berry, Lionel Barrymore and a lot of other film biggies.

Dancer

Elissa Landi has the role of a dancer in "I Loved You Wednesday," film opening Wednesday in the Warner.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS By William J. Lewis

The Willows, well-known summer spot on the shore of the Allegheny at Oakmont, will become a dramatic center tonight when the Stage Guild, local stock enterprise, makes its bow. If its foot slips, it will be entirely the fault of the Guilders, themselves, for they have chosen for their opening attraction a current success of the New York stage, "Another Language," comedy by Rose Franken. It will be given tonight, Thursday night and next Monday night. The principal parts will be played by Blanche Levy, Madeline Skelly Foust, Alexander Kann, Harold Daniels and Elizabeth Drake, all Pittsburgh actors, some of whom have had professional experience. If will be presented in an auditorium seating 1,500 persons. Drive out to Oakmont tonight and give the home folks some encouragement.

Another Rachel Crothers' play, "As Husbands Go," has been acquired for movie purposes. The acquirer is Jesse L. Lasky, former Paramount official, now allied with Fox, who obtained it through arrangement with the former company. It will go into production about August 1. "As Husbands Go" was on the stage prior to Miss Crothers' current screen comedy, "When Ladies Meet."

* * *

Myrtle Dameral, of Chicago, will join her daughter, Donna, in Culver City, Cal., where both will take parts in a movie to be made for Columbia. Who are they? "Myrt and Marge" of the air waves.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Viewpoint

I'VE HIDDEN the secret for a long time; so long, in fact, that the characters will scarcely be recognized when I write about them here. Which is as it should be—for those involved are less likely to be hurt. I only wish that all newspaper stories could be written on the same basis.

The characters are, of course, the inevitable boy and girl. We'll have to go back about five years in order to start the story and we'll have to look at the characters in turn. First, the boy:

He was a handsome kid; handsome, young, bold and careless. He was in his senior year at one of the bigger Eastern colleges, and he was as fine a football player as you'd ever want to see. If you're a football fan, his name would be extremely familiar to you. He was as well known in his day as the depression is now.

Speaking frankly, he was no more a college student than the horse that wins next year's Kentucky derby. He had been hired for his football ability, and he gave more than value received. For his board, his lodging and the $40 a week he received for tending a furnace that he never saw, he attracted tens of thousands of dollars at the gate. So both sides were well satisfied.

Yes, Bill was decidedly satisfied. Remember, if you will, that this was at a time when plenty of the colleges made little secret of the fact that they were paying for their best football players. It was nothing then for a player like Bill to get $40 per week. Today, of course, many of the colleges have reformed. Now they only pay $20.

So Bill, although he didn't know it at the time, was hitting the high spots of his life. He enjoyed as many cabarets as he could visit, and he considered a brandy contest the last word in fun and good times. So strong was he, and so full of vitality, that no amount of dissipation seemed to make any difference.

Drunk or sobed, he was still one swell football player . . .

Now, the girl:

Violet was just a kid in a cafe. She was a blonde, very young and just a little bit dizzy. I'm trying hard to find more to say about her. At the moment, I cannot. Young. Blonde. Dizzy. Yes, that tells the whole story.

In those days I knew Bill far better than I knew Violet. He was an extremely likable guy in spite of his craziness. And the only future he worried about was the one in which he'd have the best time.

"What the devil, Mark," he said to me one night, "I'm only a young fellow—and I'm crazy about life. I'm having a swell time right now, and that's the way I'm going on. Why worry about things?

"After this football racket is played out, I'll probably take a crack at Wall Street. Plenty of jobs down there whenever I want them, and a swell chunk of dough for each week I feel like working. So why should I get wrinkles making plans?

"And don't make any speeches to me about Violet. I'm goofy about her and you know it. I know she's working in a cafe, and all that, but what's the difference? You take my word for the fact that she and I are going to settle down together some day. Just wait and see."

I didn't have to wait very long. No more than two weeks after those remarks, Bill and Violet eloped one night to a small town in Maryland and were married. Bill used a garbled version of his name and got away with it. The marriage was to be kept a secret, and it was—from practically everyone.

To this day, the marriage of Bill and Violet is known to very, very few . . .

Were they happy? Say, for a time, you never saw anything like it. Those two mugs were so wild about each other that it was almost impossible to think of any other couple that might be as happy. Which was just as well, I suppose. Because if you watched those two long enough, you were liable to go a trifle batty on your own account.

Well, there isn't much more to say about that period of their lives. I saw them less and less and, as the time went by, it was nothing more than an occasional meeting at a night club or theater. The girl seemed to have changed a great deal. And the boy had lost a lot of his dash.

About two years ago, I heard that they had parted . . .

When I returned from my trip, I ran into Violet at the first opening I attended. Her outfit and her attitude made it obvious that she was in the dough. Her escort was one of the most despicable of the Broadway playboys. And if he went with being in the dough, she was welcome to all she could get.

I was able to draw her aside for a moment, and I asked her about Bill. She shook her head.

"We're still married," she said, "but that boy's in pretty bad shape. He doesn't know what a job means, and he hangs around a few of the cheaper speakeasies all night long. I haven't seen him in months."

"You still love him?" I asked her.

She hesitated.

"I feel sorry for him," was her reply.

I looked at her.

"What's that you said?" I questioned.

"I feel sorry for him," she repeated. "He's nothing more than a bum today, and he'll never get anywhere. I just feel sorry for him" . . .

I met Bill just two nights ago. I met him exactly where Violet said I would find him—in one of the cheaper speakeasies. I dropped in with a crowd of newspaper men for a glass of beer, and there was Bill at a corner of the bar. He looked older. Much older.

We shook hands warmly.

"Suppose you don't know of anything for me to do," he asserted after a while. "Nobody does—these days. Guess I'm not the guy I once was, Mark."

I switched the subject.

"Saw Violet the other night," I told him. "She looked very well. She——"

He waved a hand.

"Yeah," he interrupted, "I know. She's in the money all right. Rides around in that blue Rolls, lives on Park avenue and sports plenty of jewelry. I see her every now and then with that rat she travels with, but I never speak to her. What's the use?"

I asked him to have a drink. He ordered a double rye, and swallowed it hastily. I watched him quietly.

"Still love her, don't you, Bill?" I asked.

He nodded slowly.

"I guess so," he admitted, "although maybe it's not real love. I feel sorry for her."

"What's that?" I cried.

He twirled his empty glass on the bar.

"What she's got now," he murmured, "won't last very long. She thinks she's got everything, and she really has nothing. She'll wind up no place. I just feel sorry for her." . . .

Wales Career In Film

"The Prince of Wales," the first authentic film record of the life of His Royal Highness, is now nearing completion at the Shepherd's Bush Studios in London and will be ready for its American premiere shortly after its world premiere in the New Victoria Theater, London, June 22.

The Prince has spent considerable time at the Shepherd's Bush Studios, co-operating in making and editing the picture, which will include material photographed by the Prince and several of his friends, selected from more than 100,000 feet of both silent and sound film which has never been shown publicly. In addition to these records of his visits to Canada, Australia, South America and Africa, as well as his social and public activities at his home, there will be considerable original material in which the Prince will appear.

The London premiere will be a charity benefit.

Dunn May Broadcast Before Next Film

Revision of Script Gives Fay Role

As a result of last minute revisions in script requiring a change in characterization, Fay Wray will play the role announced for Elizabeth Allan in "Shanghai Madness," opposite Spencer Tracy. "Shanghai Madness" is a screen version of the story by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan, dealing with Chinese river pirates on the Yangtse. Ralph Morgan and Howard Lally are other members of the cast so far selected.

DIES IN PLANE TO SAVE GIRL

KANSAS CITY, June 19.—(AP.)—Howard Cavanah, 22, a commercial pilot, sacrificed his own life here yesterday to save a passenger, Miss Jewell Duncan, 16, in the crash of his airplane at the Kansas City airport.

Witnesses said the plane, a single cockpit two-seater, dropped with the couple from a height of 200 feet after the motor stalled.

Cavanah maneuvered the falling plane so that it struck the ground first on the left wing, the side on which he was seated. The wing crumpled with the impact.

Cavanah died in an ambulance. Miss Duncan suffered only bruises and cuts on the legs.

Leila Hyams Sings In Coming Film

Leila Hyams, who plays the role of a torch singer in "Sing, Sinner, Sing," has a chance to prove her talent for moanin' low when she sings "He's Mine," the song feature of the picture. The new film is scheduled for early release.

PEASANTS RIOT AT FARM SALE

AMIENS, France, June 19.—(AP.)—Eight persons were under arrest today for participating with several hundred other peasants from Brittany and Normandy in a riot at a forced farm sale.

Four civilians and gendarmes suffered slight injuries when the farmers attacked mounted and armed gendarmes. Friends of a farmer bid $480 for two automobiles and other property, redeeming the farmer's failure to pay his social insurance.

Why Do Some Men 'Slump' After Marriage?

When he was courtin' the gal, he was lively enough. He stepped her to shows. He showered her with gifts. He went tongue-tied, trying to tell her how wonderful she was, how lucky and grateful he felt.

But now that she has said "I do," what's he doing?

Is he exerting himself to make the marriage which he so desired interesting and worthwhile to her? Does he talk to her, or bring her a posy now and then? Or tell her she's His Glorious Girl, and he's still mad about her?

No! He just—But we'll let Nita tell it, and then maybe you can tell her what a wife can do in a case like hers. For I suspect that if you're a Missis you've had experiences of your own.

Dear Elsie Robinson—

Perhaps you can suggest some solution to my problem. Or perhaps some other wife has had to deal with it and can tell me how to handle it.

To plunge right into it—Here it is again, just 8:30 p. m., with nothing to do but gaze at the four walls of our living room. This happens every evening, six evenings in a row, and then on Sunday we "go for our drive," just like clockwork. And so it goes on forever and forever, it seems.

My husband gets up quite early in the morning to go to work, it is true. But he also comes home early at night.

And the first thing he does when he gets home is turn on the radio—and then go to sleep. He sleeps until supper, when I have to waken him. After he eats, he reads his paper, and then it is the same story—sleep. The whole story is that all he does is sleep.

I have tried and tried to get him out of his habit by inviting friends to our home, or dragging him to our friends' homes, but it seems as if nothing interests him. Off to sleep he goes, even in company, and then I am terribly embarrassed. So now I go to see friends alone. I go to shows alone. And I am so disgusted with everything.

CONSIDERED LEAVING HIM

I have had arguments with him, pleading with him to just talk to me, or maybe play cards, or do anything except sleep. I would be contented if he would talk to me, or at least act as if he were alive.

It just seems as if his whole life is sleep, and nothing more. I have tried to make him see that he is sleeping his life away, but it doesn't do any good.

I don't understand him at all. He wasn't like this, before we were married. I just don't know what to make of him. I have thought of leaving him for a while. Maybe he finds things too comfortable at home. Maybe if I am gone, he will begin to wake up and show a little interest in things besides work and sleep and eating.

What on earth makes a husband get like this, anyway? I have tried to keep alert and interesting myself. I'm the life of a party, if I ever get to one, and I am not hard to look at. I looked forward, once, to having a pal when I married, but how I got fooled! What shall I do?

NITA.

PASSES QUESTION ALONG

How does a husband get that way?

Well, how do they? I've given my answer many a time. Now I'm going to pass it on to the husbands themselves. So, how about it, Stranger? Are you married? Then maybe you'll tell Nita? Why does a man slump into a perfect portrayal of a Bump On a Log, once the Little Woman has whispered "I do?"

And if he does, is he giving the missis a square deal?

He expects, doesn't he, that she will put herself out to please and amuse him, and make him comfortable and happy—and keep their marriage a success? Then why shouldn't he do his part to make life liveable for her?

Of course this particular husband may be ill. He may need a doctor instead of a scolding.

But plenty of perfectly healthy men forget that wives are people, and entitled to a little companionship and fun.

Luxury Habit the Most Easily Acquired, Says Fay King

BUT, WE WERE HAPPY BEFORE WE HAD THEM!
LIFE ISN'T WORTH LIVING IF WE CAN'T HAVE THE LUXURIES WE ARE ACCUSTOMED TO!
LUXURIES BECOME AS NECESSITIES.
FAY KING

By FAY KING

No habit is so easily acquired as becoming accustomed to luxuries.

It is quite "natural" to prefer the better, and the best. Those who can indulge their acquired tastes soon find that luxuries have become necessities to them. They are reluctant to relinquish the least of these. It seems like a hardship.

That is why those who must suddenly deprive themselves of some part of that wealth and power to which they have attained, find it so difficult to readjust themselves.

The majority only achieve to a few comforts in life. And these are in many degrees with which one can be quite content if need be.

One cannot miss what one has never had, and the more one has had the more there is to miss.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Warns Hugh of Gangsters' Approach

I shall never know whether it was self-control or the numbness caused by utter astonishment that kept me from excited ejaculation when I realized that Hugh Grantland was the mysterious person lighting flares for the landing of Dicky's autogyro. But I did keep still, and after that first second's astonishment, resumed my stealthy creeping toward the flares, more hurried now than before.

There was a two-fold reason for my haste. I wished to reach Hugh's side and warn him about the approach of Nick and Tony. I also wished to be close enough to him to be directed where to stand so as not to impede Dicky's landing. The auto-gyro was about to land now, and from down the field I heard the footsteps break into a run.

Frenziedly, I rose to my feet and dashing across the few remaining feet that separated me from Hugh, grasped his arm.

"Oh! Don't let Dicky come down here!" I whispered. "Those awful men are coming. Don't you hear them running?"

I was trembling so violently that I staggered, almost slumped against him. His arm went around me, clasped me closely, convulsively for an instant, then he almost threw me behind him.

FLYING MACHINE LANDS

"Lie down on the ground and crawl away from the flares," he whispered, and when I had obeyed him, I realized that he also had dropped out of sight.

If my ears had not deceived me he was crawling directly toward the advancing gangsters.

Cowering, heart-sick with fear, remorseful, I waited for what seemed an eternity, while above me the autogyro hovered, then descended to a perfect landing as Hugh's voice called loudly:

"Hands up, you two. I have you covered."

The words were not out of his mouth before I heard the crack of two revolvers, and my throat constricted so that I was only able to gasp Dicky's name and Hugh's as I caught my husband's arm. I had risen to my feet and rushed toward him at the moment he landed.

"Dicky! Dicky! Hugh! He went out there to draw their fire from you. Save him! No! You'll be killed."

He jerked away from me so violently that I almost fell to the ground.

GANGSTER SHOT

He was furiously angry at me, consumed with jealousy because of my appeal in behalf of Hugh.

The two revolvers spoke again, and then another which I guessed to be Hugh's. A yelp of pain followed the last shot, and with fierce joy I recognized Tony's voice. I was frankly a savage now, rejoicing over the escape of my friends, gloating over the hurts of my foes.

"I told you birds I had you covered," Hugh's calm voice sounded a few feet the other side of his first position, and the guns spoke again. "Dick! You fool! Drop! You're a target." Then crisply he sent a command to the advancing gangsters, "If you fire again, I'll shoot in earnest."

But they disregarded his command, and even as Hugh's revolver spoke in answer, I heard a smothered choking sound that sent swift terror through my veins . . . Was it Hugh or Dicky that had made that sound?

-:- -:- How to Keep Well -:- -:-

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Improper Footwear Is a Cause of Nervous Ills

When next you ride in a train or trolley car, notice the shoes worn by the different passengers. It is amazing to witness the many different styles and shapes of shoes.

Dr. Copeland

I am sorry to say that most shoes appear to be uncomfortable and poorly fitted. Too little attention is placed upon the importance of wearing proper shoes.

Many disturbances of the feet, such as calluses, corns, ingrown toe nails, flat feet and other uncomfortable ailments are often traced to improper footwear. Constant wearing of improperly fitted shoes may lead to a permanent and painful deformity of the foot.

I am frequently asked what shoe is the best to wear. The best advice I can give is to say that a shoe that is too small should never be worn. It is far safer to wear a shoe that is too large rather than too small. The proper shoe should be broad in the toe and allow ample room for the toes to spread apart. The shoe should fit snugly in the arch and give the necessary support. The heels should be broad and low.

Many individuals easily twist and turn their ankles. This is often the result of wearing shoes that are pointed and have an unusually high heel. If you are a sufferer from weak ankles, certainly you should never wear a shoe with a heel higher than one and a quarter inches. A high heel does not give the foot proper support and throws additional strain on the ankle. Many contusions, severe abrasions and fractures of the ankles have resulted from the wearing of shoes fitted with high heels.

In what I have said, I do not mean to imply that it is necessary to wear a heavy, bulky and ungainly looking shoe in order to insure proper foot health. Fortunately, most shoe manufacturers now realize the importance of making shoes that appeal to the individual taste, as well as to insure foot comfort.

I cannot overemphasize the importance of good foot health. The general health is influenced by the health of the feet, and in many instances nervous disorders and other complaints follow unhealthy conditions of the feet.

The care of the feet should begin at an early age. Infants who show signs of foot deformities, especially flat feet, should receive the proper attention as soon as possible. Flat foot is a condition that can be corrected in infants and young children. It is only while the bones are young and soft that this deformity can be completely cured.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Making an Impossible Contract

The pendulum has swung so far toward Approach bidding that some players almost make a religion out of refusing to open with a Forcing bid, regardless of their honor strength or distribution. Actually, it is just as dangerous a thing in Bridge to refuse to make a Forcing bid if the hand is strong enough as it is to make a Forcing bid on hands which are too weak. A Forcing bid with a hand of tremendous strength is just as surely an approach to the correct contract as is the suit bid of one on hands of less pronounced honor and distributional value.

The holder of the South hand below was one who disliked greatly the idea of an Opening Forcing bid, and because of that, he became involved in play from which only his opponent's bid and his own masterly play extricated him.

South, Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♡ (1) | Pass | 1 NT (2) | 2 ♠ (3) |
| 6 ♡ (4) | Pass | Pass | Pass |

1—Obviously South has a splendid Forcing bid of two hearts, rather than the Approach bid of one heart.

2—Of course, North should not bid notrump with this holding. Such a bid, with all good players, indicates a minimum of the equivalent of an Ace or Queen or thereabouts. North's hand is far too weak to keep open an Opening bid of one.

3—East really has a very fine hand and would be justified in taking even stronger action with his holding, but obviously can get nowhere in view of the unfortunate distribution.

4—With superb inconsistency, South, after refusing to force on the first round of bidding, now decides to bid the Slam all by himself. However, in his defense, it might be said that he could not be expected to vision only three Knaves in the hand of a partner who had made a notrump response to his Opening bid.

West, in response to his partner's bid of spades, opened the King, and when the Dummy went down, south realized that his contract was probably impossible of fulfillment. However, he saw a slight glimmer of hope, based upon three conditions, the first being three spade holdings of East, the second, an even division of the adverse trumps, and the third, the location of the diamond Queen. If East held the remaining honors in spades, as seemed likely on the bidding, there was a chance to establish one spade in the Dummy hand as a winner, provided four hearts could be spared for purposes of ruffing; and if, in addition, West held the Queen of diamonds, then perhaps the Slam could be made.

As a slight chance is better than none, South proceeded with the play on this basis. He ruffed the King of spades with the Ace of trumps and led the Ten of hearts, overtaking with the Knave in Dummy. Now the Knave of spades was laid down, East covering with the Queen and South ruffing with the King of trumps. A small trump was returned to the Dummy, the trick being won with the 9, and the third round of spades led. This time South ruffed with the Queen when East played the Ten. Abandoning for a time the establishment of a spade, South now led the diamond 5. West played the Queen and returned a club. This lead was now too late. South won with the Ace and re-entered the Dummy by leading his remaining low diamond. Another round of spades forced out East's last Spade honor, which South ruffed with his remaining trump. The Ace and King of diamonds were now played, Dummy's last club being discarded on South's last diamond. Now South led a small club, ruffed with the trump 5 in Dummy, and discarded his remaining loser on the established spade.

A contract which should not have been reached was made by masterly play based upon visioning all the possibilities of distribution and taking advantage of every favorable break.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Drinking Coffee

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My friend believes that it is correct to test the heat of coffee by using a spoon, but I think it looks very awkward.

Will you please tell me which is correct?

2—Also, is this letter-paper correct for personal correspondence? P.

1—Your friend is right. The coffee is stirred once or twice with the spoon, and then the heat is tested by taking a sip with the spoon.

2—Yes, your letter paper is proper for social correspondence.

A Controversy

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please settle the following controversy: A says that the form "Mrs. Dr. Brown" is not correct and should never be used, while B maintains that custom has made this use permissible. S.

A is overwhelmingly correct. It is "hick" to refer to the wife of a doctor as "Mrs. Dr. Brown" and custom has never made this anything but humorous.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The foundation cream slaps down rough cells on the skin surface, produces a smoothness that permits the powder to go on evenly. Also, with a powder base on the job, makeup sticks like a friend and a brother, a gel doesn't have to be forever bringing out the purse mirror and the compact, building for herself a fresh complexion. Can't be compounded at home. Disappearing creams are difficult to make, require the skill of the cosmetic chemist.

Moth patches, unless too long established, often disappear during the winter season, returning upon exposure to strong sunlight—showing that they are closely related to freckles. They come usually on the backs of hands. Unless they are old timers, a bleaching cream will restrain them. And don't forget that our old friend lemon juice carries on pretty well.

Household Hints

To prevent woolen socks from shrinking, wash them in warm water, rinse well, then pull leg part and insert a pair of shoe trees before hanging out to dry.

Do not store jams and pickles on a top shelf, as hot air rises and heat is apt to cause fermentation.

STATE'S BEER LAW CHANGE PREDICTED

U. S. Attorney Claims Measure Passed 'Too Hurriedly'

It is obvious that the state beer control law must be changed at the next session of the Legislature, Raymond D. Evans, assistant United States district attorney, yesterday told a meeting of the Pennsylvania Beer and Wine Dealers Association in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

The reason, he said, was that the law was passed so hurriedly.

Improper observance of the beer law will prevent repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, he warned the association.

"Cut-throat" competition was scored by John Douglas, Jr., president of the association, who presided at the meeting.

The oganization, he said, is investigating hundreds of cases of violations, and will make them known at the proper time.

The first outdoor popular concerts in Pittsburgh were given 50 years ago at Silver Lake, Saudek recalled. In the last concerts, at the Schenley the first year of the World War, Saudek played in the orchestra under direction of the late Carl Bernthaler.

STUDIES FLYING TO AID HUSBAND

The country's gone off the gold standard, so . . . Mrs. Blanche Treharne goes in for aviation.

Mrs. Treharne's husband, Spencer S. Treharne, of New York, is in the silver business . . . that's the reason. Climbing into the cockpit of a Penn School of Aviation ship at the county airport, she explained:

"You see . . . it's business. My husband sells silverware and all that sort of thing. I have sold him on the idea of letting me learn to fly so I can pilot him around the country now that everybody's buying silver with the country off the gold standard."

Thinking there might be more than just what appeared on the surface of Mrs. Treharne's desire to fly, her inquisitor queried:

"But what's the occasion . . . is it a birthday present—or a wedding anniversary gift, this flying course your husband has given you?"

32 Warships Join Boys Who See the World

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We don't think that national movement back to work will drive the office boy away from the water cooler.

Looking over Congress, we discover that the old guard sine dies, but never surrenders.

New York City would like to borrow thirty million, but the party must be reliable.

Thirty-two brand new battleships are joining the boys who want to see the world.

Strange that some of those senators don't hang around the White House campus for a summer course.

If England insists on silver payments we will take half in pound sterlings and the other half in golf cups.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., June 19.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

So father had a day today, did he? Where? But you figure it out, and he dident deserve any more of a day than he got. There is a lot of huey about poor father being imposed on. Dear old father gets away with quite a bit of murder just because he is father. If he was some outsider and pulled the junk he does they would chuck him in the alley. There is nothing outside of an economist, that's been any more overestimated than a father. He is a necessity and that about lets him out.

FLOOD CONTROL PLAN PROVIDES 10 RESERVOIRS

Commission Here Asks Funds From Public Works Administrator

A request for a Federal grant of $60,000,000 for a flood control project in the Allegheny and Monongahela River valleys of Western Pennsylvania, has been laid before the new Public Works Administration by representatives of the Pittsburgh Flood Commission, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Washington.

The project calls for the erection of 10 huge reservoirs in the two river valleys, to back up the water from heavy fall, spring rains and abnormal rises in the two rivers and the upper Ohio such as have brought serious damage to industries and home owners along the stream's banks in years past.

The commission estimated in its application that the project would give work to 46,000 men at the rate of 250 days a year for some time to come.

It is said minor differences between the commission and Army engineers about the construction details could probably be ironed out with little difficulty once the money was granted.

Speedy action on the application was asked in the interest of reducing the large number of unemployed in the western part of the state.

In the line with the application of the commission is a bill introduced into the House of Representatives by Congressman J. Bull Snyder, of Fayette County, providing for the construction of 11 dams in the Youghiogheny River between Connellsville, Pa., and Friendsville, Maryland.

CITY TO SEEK FEDERAL CASH

City officials today were planning an attack on the coffers of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to clinch a public works program of $20,650,000.

A delegation which originally planned to leave tonight for Washington has postponed the trip until the program is in more presentable shape.

County officials have already hinted to Uncle Sam's lending agency that the county could very nicely use $21,000,000 for construction work.

Among city improvements provided for in this program is a 1,500-foot tunnel under Schenley Park to provide a high speed route through Pittsburgh to the Lincoln and William Penn highways.

Other improvements for which funds will be sought include the relocation of the Lincoln highway through the city, the Wabash bridge and tunnel, extension of Ohio River boulevard to the Beaver County line, extension of Allegheny River boulevard to Hulton Station, extension of the Shousetown road from Crescent Township to the Beaver County line, construction of the Wayman Baptist road at South Park and the widening of Jerome avenue, McKeesport.

OFFICER CHEATS DEATH

'Doomed' After Fall, He Lives to Claim $25,000 Damages

Given only three days to live after he was seriously injured when he fell 22 feet through a third-story porch platform, March 17, 1932, Patrolman Thomas D. English, is now asking for $25,000 damage in a claim filed with the prothonotary.

In the statement of claim, the defendants named are M. S., S. M. and Saul Kann, owners of the building at 106 East Ohio street, North Side.

English, who lives at 1411 Columbus avenue with his wife and three children, was attached to the North Side station radio car when he answered a call to investigate a "roof party" at the East Ohio street address. The porch platform collapsed when he attempted to get on the roof. His back was broken. Four petters were arrested.

English, then a member of the force for eight years, while in the hospital, learned he had been dismissed from the force, reinstated, then reduced to sub-patrolman because, he charged, of "political preferment, prejudice and favoritism." He was one of the five policemen who, with nine firemen, appealed to the courts after the Civil Service Commission according to their charges, refused to review their protests against dismissals in the 1932 political shakeup.

The police, however, all withdrew their appeals, and four of them, including English, were reinstated.

SLUM CAMPAIGN DOOMED, SAY BUILDERS

Governmental eradication of slums is doomed on the whole to failure John B. Lear, vice president, and L. B. Ermerling, executive secretary of the Building Owners and Managers Association said today as the annual convention of the group opened in the Hotel William Penn.

Lear declared estimates of cost of modern structures to substitute for slums would cost $8 a room—a cost too high for those who would want to rent the new quarters. At this rate, commercial builders would not make enough profit to warrant their adventuring. Not all purely governmental ventures would fail, however, Lear predicted, estimating that three out of 10 might be an average of success.

Ermerling stated that the commercial building industry was maintaining a 73 per cent rental level, higher than most other branches of business. He added:

"And I hope no more commercial buildings are built until the slack is taken up."

Mayor John S. Herron in addressing the group said:

"You have a right to follow your city government closely and I want to urge you to continuing doing so."

Entertainment for visitors will include an informal party at the hotel tonight, a boat trip on the steamer Washington tomorrow night, open house at the Better Homes Exhibit in the Gulf Building Wednesday afternoon, sightseeing trips and the annual banquet Thursday night.

U. S. BUILDING COST RISE SEEN

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(INS.)—A sharp increase in the cost of constructing new federal buildings is expected by officials who are preparing to launch a $100,000,000 program in the immediate future.

Restrictions in the industrial recovery act designed to spread work, as well as the general increase in commodity prices, both will have a material effect, it is said.

Under the industrial act, all contracts shall contain provisions to prevent use of convict labor, require the 30-hour week so far as is practicable, just and reasonable wages, preference for local labor and ex-service men.

A further condition in the act says:

"The maximum of human labor shall be used in lieu of machinery wherever practicable and consistent with sound advantage and public economy."

Visitors to Ross Scott farm, near Waynesburg, where the sheep have just been sheared of wool selling now from 25 to 27 cents a pound—as against a record low of 10 cents last year. The price is the highest in three years as sheep farmers cheer depression's "end" in Greene County.

GREENE COUNTY LEADS IN WOOL

WAYNESBURG, Pa., June 19.—Greene County leads the state in production of long stapled wool.

Since the price of wool is up to 25 and 27 cents per pound this spring after reaching a record low of 10 cents last year, Greene County also knows that the depression is disappearing.

With approximately 127,000 sheep, the most of any county in Pennsylvania, Greene County also leads the state in production of fine wool with an annual clip of approximately 1,000,000 pounds. At present prices this means that approximately three-quarters of a million dollars will be placed in the hands of Greene County farmers this summer.

In addition there will be an extra $35,000 or more as result of many farmers having held their wool from last year who are now realizing the advantage of present price increases.

Practically all of the wool grown in Greene County is shipped to large commission firms in Boston and Philadelphia.

3 MORE NAMED IN GULF OIL TAX SUITS

George S. Davison, W. J. Guthrie and F. A. Leovy, today were named defendants in suits filed in Federal Court, charging income tax evasions, on Gulf Oil Corporation stock.

The suits are similar to those filed last week against W. L. Mellon, president of the corporation; H. L. Stone and Gale R. Nutty, and were brought by Albert R. Knight, of Lansdowne, Delaware County.

Judgment of $321,865.16 is asked against George S. Davison, double the tax of $160,932.59 which he is said to have evaded between March 1, 1927, and March 1, 1929, when he received 4,624 shares of Gulf stock, valued at $550,069.

The suit against Guthrie is for $271,925.94, it being alleged he evaded $135,962.57 between May 1, 1927, and March 1, 1930, on 3,354 shares of Gulf stock, valued at $384,030.75.

Leovy is alleged to have evaded payment of $159,002.37 between March 1, 1927, and March 1, 1930, and judgment is sought for $318,004.75. It is claimed he acquired 3,942 shares of stock worth $451,943.

In each suit it is alleged the defendants in their income tax returns claimed deductions by reason of interest charges supposedly accrued on money represented to be owed by the defendants to the Gulf Oil Corporation. It is claimed they did not owe the money and that they received the stocks in addition to cash compensation for services.

GEM TREASURE SENT TO FAIR

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP.)—Mexico's luxurious presidential train, bearing the famed Monte Alban jewels, spoken of as the most valuable assortment of archeological art objects ever found in the Western world, arrived today for display at a Century of Progress Exposition as the official exhibit of the Mexican government.

The three coaches of the presidential equipage were switched into repair shops to be washed. The baggage car, containing the jewels, was run into the World's Fair grounds. It will probably be opened to the public today or tomorrow.

The railroad coaches, which are handsomely furnished and ornately decorated in native Mexican art, were built here by the Pullman Company on order to former President Plutarco Elias Calles.

Crash Kills Girl In Elopement Dash

COLUMBUS, O., June 19.—(INS.)—An intended elopement to Ashland, Ky., today had ended in tragedy for Sylvia Milligan, 17, of Columbus.

She was fatally injured last night when an automobile crashed into a filling station near Alma.

Speaker Falls Dead At Miners' Meeting

LONACONING, Md., June 19.—(AP.)—After concluding a speech at a miners' meeting, in which he said, "I have spoke for the union all my life, and I hope to do so as long as God gives me breath," Magistrate Will J. Ford, 70, fell dead.

'Mechanical Lung' Patient Dies After Year

PHILADELPHIA, June 19.—(INS.)—Fifteen-year-old Earl Potter has lost his courageous 306-day fight against death. For nearly a year, Earl lived in a "mechanical lung" at Philadelphia Hospital for Contagious Diseases.

Today it had lost its tenant—for Earl was seized with convulsions and died.

Earl's cheerfulness made him loved in the hospital, and in a measure, nationally famous. Connie Mack and star baseball players visited him.

President Roosevelt, then President-elect, sent him a note in January. It read:

"I have just learned you are ill and in the hospital, and I want to send you this line of good wishes with the hope that you will soon be quite well again."

COUNTIES GET GAS TAX FUNDS

HARRISBURG, June 19.—(INS.)—Sixty-five counties today received their share of the gasoline tax paid to the state during the first six months of this year.

Payment of $26,223.13 to Mercer County and $8,763.44 to Greene County was withheld pending receipt of reports from the County Commissioners.

The payments included:

Allegheny, $321,102.07; Armstrong, $15,772.67; Beaver, $32,240.09; Bedford, $11,229.14; Blair, $33,625.74; Butler, $24,837.99; Cambria, $37,063.54; Clarion, $8,860.15; Clearfield, $18,117.94; Crawford, $19,123.51; Elk, $7,012.81; Erie, $55,742.57; Fayette, $39,089.46; Indiana, $17,728.72; Jefferson, $11,852.60; Somerset, $16,568.54; Venango, $21,028.29 Warren $11,458.22; Washington, $44,363.35, and Westmoreland, $64,098.03.

Fight to Be Renewed For Ohio Sales Tax

COLUMBUS, O., June 19.—(AP.)—Target for a half dozen proposed revisions, the administration's sales tax measure will be taken up again by the House on reconvening tonight for a week's session that may decide the fate of the bill.

The exemption on foodstuffs has been eliminated and the legislators are aiming their attack on other administration proposals for exemptions. Supporters of the original measure claim the thrusts are attempts to "amend to death" the two per cent tax measure to finance schools and poor relief.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

CZARISTS SHUN HUTTON RITES

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Service.

PARIS, June 19.—The forthcoming nuptials of Barbara Hutton, New York heiress, and Prince Alexis Mdivani, of Russia, were threatened with a boycott by Czarist aristocrats today.

Twenty-four hours before the time set for the civil marriage of the Prince and the American girl, it was learned numerous titled emigres from what is now the Georgian Republic of Soviet Russia, where Mdivani was born, have decided to remain away from the marriage for what appear to be political reasons.

To begin with, spokesmen for this group insist they do not recognize Mdivani's "Georgian legation" here as representing the new Socialist republic rather than the old Georgian kingdom.

WOMEN AWAIT PRIZE MENU AWARDS

Several hundred women are anxiously awaiting the verdict of Prudence Penny and her associate judges in the first week's prize dinner menu contest sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph.

In many instances these women really need the money—in others the distinction of submitting a prize winning menu means more than the cash. The entries for the first week come from every city, town and borough in the reading area of this newspaper. They are not confined to the ranks of the poor and, perhaps, unemployed, but many of them bear the names of women who are prominent in home, club and social life in such communities as Sewickley, Mt. Lebanon, Fox Chapel Road and Schenley Farms.

Contest No. 2 is now on. The identical problem is to be solved by the housewives:

"Can four persons be served a well-balanced, appetizing dinner menu at a cost not to exceed $1.50?"

Entries for Contest No. 1 must be submitted before midnight tomorrow. Entries for Contest No. 2 will be received up to the same hour, Tuesday, June 27. Entries in the first contest will not be judged in the second contest unless they are re-submitted and distinctly marked "Contest No. 2."

The Sun-Telegraph is awarding $100 in weekly cash prizes in this timely contest. The first prize is $25. A complete list of prizes for the second week, rules and an entry blank will be found on another page of today's Sun-Telegraph.

Housewives may send in as many entries as they wish. If additional blanks are desired, they can be obtained for the asking at any of these leading stores: Triangle, Clover Farm Stores, Butlers, Krogers, Donahoe's or McCann's.

MENCKEN CYNIC, MINISTER SAYS

The Rev. Dr. William Chalmers Covert, general secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Christian Education, blamed H. L. Mencken and the entire group of modern cynics for spoiling the sweetest experiences of life in a radio address over KDKA yesterday.

Dr. Covert spoke from the pulpit of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church. Cynicism, he held, to be the outstanding vice of the present sophisticated generation, quickly spoiling the delicate bloom of spirituality. Irreverence, triviality and egotism are other mental sins which he rebuked.

TOMMY BIG FACTOR IN PIRATE RALLY

BY NO MEANS the least factor in the rally that has seen the Pirates ring up three victories in a row, with Heinie Meine contributing one of the wins and going the distance for the first time in five weeks, has been the sterling work of Tommy Thevenow. Since he relieved Tony Piet at second base, Thevenow not only has continued the brilliant defensive play for which he is noted, but yesterday his bat also cut a big figure in the twin triumph at Boston. Tommy pasted the pill safely five times in the two games, drove home three of the Bucs' nine runs, and climaxed a big day by pounding in the winning tally in the second contest.

Heinie Meine

In his role as a reserve, Thevenow has helped the Pirates over many a rough spot. Every time there's trouble, or when some regular is disabled or in a slump, Tommy is called in to plug the gap, and every time he makes a flossy job of it. He has been in 15 games this year, at three different positions, and he has yet to make an error in 62 chances, having handled 24 putouts and 38 assists without a slip. Thevenow is not a full-time player, and he is not a strong hitter through a season, but if there is a more valuable utility infielder in the big show, Pittsburgh fans would like to get a look at him.

Sunday appears to be the Pittsburgh club's lucky day. Three times this season, the last two in succession, the Bucs have won double-headers on that day, and out of 12 games played on the first day of the week they have captured nine against only three defeats. The record is in striking contrast to that of another Pennsylvania club, the Philadelphia Athletics. Connie Mack's team has not won a Sunday game all season, and the double reverse in Detroit yesterday made a total of 11 Sunday defeats the A's have suffered.

NOT UNTIL HE had been in baseball 20 years did Burleigh Grimes participate in that rare double play, first base to shortstop to pitcher, in which the hurler covers first base for the second out. It fell to the late Wayland Dean to complete that play more frequently than any other slabman.

But Brooklyn fans recall that Grimes, while a Dodger in 1924, made a play that has not been duplicated by any other major league pitcher within memory—an unassisted putout on his own wild pitch. In a game against the Cubs, one of Grimes' pitches hit the ground near the plate and rebounded from the shinguards of Catcher Zack Taylor. Burleigh caught the ball and made a dive in to the plate to tag out Art Weis, who attempted to score from third.

THE ACTION OF the owners of the Cleveland club in giving Manager Walter Johnson a contract covering next year as well as the remainder of the present campaign was an admission that they do not expect the new pilot to perform any miracles this season.

It is said the Indian bosses now realize that their team will have to be rebuilt. The club was constructed to take advantage of the short right-field wall at the old park in Cleveland, and must be revamped to conform to the tremendous distances in the new stadium. At that Johnson has done mighty well so far. The Indians have won six of their first seven games under his leadership.

AMERICAN LEAGUE MAGNATES still pooh-pooh the idea of a deader ball and better pitching this year, holding that most of the clubs stocked up with spheres of the 1932 type last fall. They try to explain away the early light hitting by saying that rain and old weather so slowed up the infields that balls were being scooped up which now are beginning to skip through to the outfield for basehits. But this only brings a laugh from National League players, who point to the huge reduction in the number of .300 hitters as evidence that the ball was deadened secretly. They say it sounds like a canteloupe when it's hit. The Dodgers, among the chief sufferers because of their flat-footed slugging tactics, are particularly scathing in their denunciation of the new pill. There are many others to back them up, and one of them is Chuck Klein, of the Phillies.

Chuck Klein

AFTER A POOR start, Klein has boosted his average above .350, but he's far from satisfied. "If we were working with last year's apple I'd be hitting .400," the Quaker slugger declares. "I have a couple of last year's baseballs which I carry around, and when I'm in a slump the boys throw them to me in batting practice. Then I feel good after watching them ride."

Klein confesses that he has shortened up on his swing to meet the new conditions. "The shorter hitters are not suffering so much," he says, "but the long hitters are having it tough." Chuck points to his own home-run record as evidence. He has made 11 homers, but eight of them came at Baker Bowl, where the joke right-field wall makes four-basers easily possible, even with a shortened swing.

THE IRISH, WHO always have got somebody wondering about something, have done it again. They will hold their twenty-ninth annual Irish Day at Kennywood Park Saturday as the seventy-fourth anniversary celebration of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, and are going to feature a game of hurling.

That does not mean that they will do anything to prove their

MIDSHIPMEN LIKELY TO COME HERE

By JESS CARVER

The chances of the regiment of midshipmen of the United States Naval Academy accompanying the Navy football team here next October 15 for the game with Pitt may be put down as being very good, or, as Honest Ollie, the bookie, would quote 'em, about 5 to 2.

Lieut. Commander Overesch, director of football at the Navy, naturally could not promise definitely that the Middies would escort their footballers here, but during his week-end visit with Don Harrison, Pitt's athletic director, he indicated that the outlook was very promising. Indeed, while neither he or W. Don would say so, it is believed that they went pretty deeply into arrangements for entertaining the regiment.

It is just as tough for the Sailors to get away from Annapolis as it is for the corps of cadets to break away from West Point. The game, with the Navy looming as a potentially powerful gridiron unit, will be attractive enough to bring out a huge crowd in itself, but will take on added color and attractiveness if the regiment comes along.

Commander Overesch, a strapping six-footer, who looks as tough and well conditioned as when he played an end for the Navy back in '15 against Pitt, thinks very highly of the Middies' chances this fall. There is enough coach in his makeup to keep him from talking in too optimistic a vein, but he could not help breaking out now and then with a round or two of praise for the Navy's prospects.

BUCCOS SCORE DOUBLE WIN OVER BRAVES

BOSTON, June 19.—The same quiet, conscientious boy who last years transformed the Pirates from a second-division choice into a hot pennant contender today shone with a new radiance as a dozen bold Buccaneers took a hitch in their belts and exclaimed:

"The Pirates are fighting mad, and Earl Grace is hitting again!"

The Buccos rested today on account of yesterday's "synthetic" doubleheader.

Only two short days ago, the Pirates hurried back to Pittsburgh from the West, their bodies and feelings sore as a result of four consecutive defeats. In the two intervening days, the Pittsburghers, in the face of a bad schedule, have won three contests and in each of the three battles Grace's bat has spoken with a defiant tone.

Pittsburgh fans have been singing the blues as a result of three catchers whose collective batting was below the .200 mark. There were times last season when Grace shaped up as one of the most dangerous hitters in the league, but, alas, he went into the same slump that gripped other Buccos this season. A leg injury also slowed him down, but Grace in the past several days has been the punch of the Buccos.

INSPIRES VICTORY DRIVE

Earl has clicked with seven hits in the successive victories, which mounted to three yesterday afternoon as the Pirates took both ends of a doubleheader with the Braves. Grace's fiery single with two out in the eighth inning at Pittsburgh Saturday scored Pie Traynor to give the Buccos a victory over the Cubs. The reliable receiver carved himself five hits in the victorious dual win over the Boston club.

Grace's sudden return to form caused Manager Gibson to use him in both games of the twin bill, despite the fact that Southpaw Eddie Brandt started against the Buccos in the opener.

The other clubs in the thick of the pennant fight had been getting timely licks from their catchers while this notch of the Pirate order did little else other than backfire. But Grace apparently has arrived again and there is joy in the Pittsburgh camp.

Hostilities with the Braves will be resumed tomorrow, the series to close Wednesday with another dual bill.

Heinie Meine and Larry French rode through with a pair of triumphs in the fun of yesterday. The scores of the contests were 5-3 and 4-3. The second game was called at the end of eighth inning to conform with the Sunday sports law, which prohibits professional sport after 6:30 p. m.

TRIO MAKES 15 HITS

Arky Vaughan and Tommy Thevenow were heroes in a swift-moving drama that gave the last contest to the Pirates. Two doubles delivered by Arky and Tommy with the game deadlocked and two out brought the Pirates the winning run.

As quickly as Vaughan crossed the plate, the Boston players resorted to stalling in order to fore-

DUNLAP WINS IN BRITISH AMATEUR TOURNEY

U. S. GOLFERS ADVANCE ABROAD

HOYLAKE, England, June 19.—(AP.)—George Dunlap, Jr., leading United States entrant in the British Amateur golf championship, today made an auspicious start in his title quest as he defeated Joseph Gorry, Irish amateur, 4 and 3, in a second round match. Both had first round byes.

Gorry, little known player from County Kildare, won only one hole of the 15 played, the twelfth, where Dunlap slipped one over par. The cards:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Par out | 445 | 344 | 354—36 |
| Dunlap | 545 | 345 | 453—38 |
| Gorry | 556 | 345 | 453—40 |
| Par in | 434 | 354 | 544—36—72 |
| Dunlap | 445 | 354 | |
| Gorry | 454 | 455 | |

DE FOREST DETHRONED

C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, Canadian holder of the United States Amateur title, advanced with Dunlap to the third round, defeating D. H. R. Martin, an old Oxford Blue, 4 and 3.

John De Forest, defending titleholder, went out in the second round in an overtime match with G. D. Hannay, little-known club player from Woking, coming from behind to square the match at the sixteenth, but losing out on the twentieth hole.

One of the six American entrants, Robert Sweeney, found himself in the third round without even having to swing a brassie. He had drawn a bye in the first round and his second-round opponent, F. C. Harrison, scratched, giving the American a walkover.

C. W. Wigle, Canadian entrant, lost to Bernard Darwin, 3 and 2, in the second round. Jack Nash, another Canadian, won over W. S. Wiseman in the first round, 2 and 1.

PIRATES WIN TWIN BILL

stall the finish of the eighth. Had they succeeded, the contest would have reverted to even innings and the Braves would have won. The dilatory tactics became so pronounced that Umpire Moran eventually cautioned Manager McKechnie by threatening to forfeit the game to Pittsburgh.

The Pirates threw a four-run attack at Brandt in the first inning of the opener. Leo Mangum relieved Brandt and allowed one more tally in the round and then reeled off eight shutout frames. Meine nursed his lead; he allowed only seven hits.

City School Nines To Clash Today

The Westinghouse and South Hills high school baseball nines clash in the second game of the championship playoff series for the City League title at the Dormont High School field this afternoon, with the South Hills nine needing only one more win to take the crown.

In the first game of the series, played last week, the Tunnelites took the measure of the Silver Lakers on the Westinghouse field. The second game, originally booked for last Friday, at Olympia Park, was rained out

Forbes and Brookline are clashing at Olympia Park this afternoon for the grade school championship of the city.

Arkle Defeated In W. Va. Tourney

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 19.—(AP.)—Sam Cohn, of Beckley, won the turn-about closed tennis championship of West Virginia in a tight match with the 1932 finalist, Benjamin Franklin Arkle, of Wheeling. The scores were 6-4, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3.

Cohn has been trading the crown with Arkle for a number of years. Edward Blickle and Fred Field, of Huntington, took the doubles title match from Arkle and James E. Allen, Jr., of Elkins, 4-6, 12-10, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.

Indianapolis Star Sets Swat Mark

INDIANAPOLIS, June 19.—(AP.)—Frank Sigafoos, Indianapolis second baseman, established new American Association record for hitting in consecutive games when he drove out a clean single in his first time at bat in the second inning of the game against Columbus yesterday. It was the thirty-seventh consecutive game in which Sigafoos has hit safely one or more times.

South Park Trio Scores 11-5 Win

The South Park polo team defeated the Old Furnace riders, 11 to 5, at South Park yesterday afternoon.

Sunday Golf

D. R. Seemann and A. H. Brandon, both of whom scored net 68s, won the medal play event staged at Alcoma yesterday. V. S. Covert, finishing 2 up, was the winner in the match play against par event at Edgewood, while A. J. Krell won a similar event at Duquesne by finishing 4 up.

S. L. Slocum turned in a net 65 to win the Churchill Valley medal play tourney, while V. L. McClay scored a net 70 in winning the medal play event at Stanton Heights.

Seeing Double—Two Lew Raymonds

LEW RAYMOND, BALTIMORE, BOXER, AND LEW RAYMOND, LOCAL MATCHMAKER

BALTIMO' RING STARS HERE

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Baby Joe Gans vs. Jack Portney, Lew Raymond vs. Billy Holt and Mose Butch vs. Dandy Allen, 10 rounds each, and Don Asto vs. Johnny Durso, 6 rounds, Hickey Park, Millvale.

Paul Oger vs. Freddie Edwards, 10 rounds, Charleston, W. Va.

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Two of the best boxers in Baltimore, cradle of good fighting men since the days of Joe Gans, and including such celebrities as George and Andy Chaney, Kid Williams and the Dundee brothers, Joe and Vince, make their Pittsburgh debuts tonight in two of the three 10-round bouts of the weekly show at Hickey Park, Millvale.

Jack Portney

They are Jack Portney, who meets the famous Baby Joe Gans, Negro welterweight puncher, in the main bout, and Lew Raymond, another welter, who boxes Billy Holt, of Homewood, in the semi-final. Raymond is a nephew of the Dundees and undoubtedly was inspired to carry on in the ring game by the shining example set by his uncles, one of whom won the world welterweight title and the other of whom is regarded as the uncrowned middleweight champion.

THREE FIGHTING BROTHERS

This despite the fact that Max Waxman, manager of Vince Dundee, who also piloted Joe Dundee to the championship, said while here recently for Vince's bout with Frankie Goosby that he named Raymond after the local matchmaker because he thought the boxer was going to be a bust. Of course, he was only "ribbing" the matchmaker, for the latter is one of Max's best friends and is rated one of the country's foremost men in his line. Incidentally, Lew Raymond is one of three fighting brothers, the others being Phil and Charley Raymond.

Portney recently defeated Eddie (Kid) Wolfe and has won over other stars, and the Wolfe victory is sufficient recommendation for the local fans, for Wolfe has done some of his best battling in local rings.

Mose Butch boxes Dandy Allen, Negro featherweight, of the Hill, in the first 10-rounder, and Johnny Durso and Don Asto are in the six-round opener, which goes on at 8:45.

ONLY SHOW OF WEEK

The Hickey Park show is the only professional card of the week here, the North Braddock Bowl being shut down until Wednesday night of next week, when it will offer a benefit show for the needy of the Fourth Ward.

Ray Eberle, Aliquippa's gift to the hall of fame among the announcers, is tuning up for his appearance as master of ceremonies at the annual picnic of the Amen Corner at Turner Park, Perrysville, Wednesday afternoon. He'll announce the boxing bouts and athletic games and introduce the celebrities.

GREATER PITTSBURGH LEAGUE

Waners at St. Clair.

Three games in the City League and ladies' night at Greenlee Field, where the Pittsburgh Crawfords clash in the final game of the series with Detroit, feature the local sandlot card for this evening.

The Crawfords have taken two out of the three games played, so far, with the Detroiters, and naturally are keen to win this evening.

CITY RIVALS MEET

In the City League, Dormont goes to Homewood. Books meet the Gillespies, of Brentwood, at Olympia Park, and the Ottie Cochran club meets Whitaker on the Wilson avenue grounds.

Satchel Paige had the Detroiters on his hip yesterday as the locals won, 7 to 2, before a fair sized turnout at Greenlee Field. Some sensational fielding by Jimmy Crutchfield in the early innings stood the elongated Crawford hurler in good stead, but he limited the Detroiters to five hits, two of which were collected by Binder, the shortstop.

Oscar Charleston provided the only home run of the contest, hitting for the circuit in the ninth inning. It was his fourth hit of the game.

BOOKS VICTORS

In the City League yesterday, the Books walloped the Gillespies, 11 to 6. The Dormont-South Park nine downed Whitaker, 7 to 1 at South Park.

Joe Csobody, 18-year-old mound star of the Leechburg Magyars, of the Kiski Valley League, has turned in three no-hit games and one single-hit performance to date. He has turned Oklahoma, Vandergrift and Hyde Park back without a hit and held Hyde Park to one hit.

Alekhine Wins In Chess Tourney

FOKESTONE, England, June 19.—(AP.)—Dr. Alexander Alekhine, of Paris, world champion, yesterday defeated Mir Sultan Khan after 108 moves in a game adjourned from the fifth round of the international chess team tournament here.

The leading scores after eight rounds are as follows: United States 26-6, Sweden 21½-9½, Poland 20½-11½, Czechoslovakia 19½-8½, Austria 18½-13½, France 18½-12½, Hungary 18-11 and Latvia 16-15.

MARSON BIRD RACE VICTOR

Miss Garbo, to the loft of J. H. Marson, turned in the best mark in the Pittsburgh Concourse's 500-mile race from Vandalia, Ill., yesterday. Miss Garbo's mark was 1290.31.

Ray S., of the Schellenberger loft of the Central Combine, was second in 1289.86 and Ray Esch's Jazz Baby, of the Lincoln Homing Club, third in 1287.88. Fourth place went to F. Wilsman's Combination, from the North Side Combine, in 1287.67.

The Concourse's next race will be an open affair from Greensfield, Ind.

MUSHBALL CARD SET

Avalon and Allegheny branches of the Y. M. C. A. drew byes in the monthly series of games in the city-wide mushball league for June. Oakland and East Liberty branches play at Heth Field at 7 p. m. Thursday and the winner will play Allegheny at 7 p. m. June 29. Hilltop plays Bellevue at Bellevue High Field at 2 p. m. Saturday and the winner plays Avalon at 7 p. m. June 29. The deciding match will be played at 2 p. m. July 1.

Long's Sport Comment

reputed accuracy with the common building brick. On the contrary, the proceedings will be decorous in the extreme. There will be present city and county officials, judges and other notables when the 15 men who compose the Cork Club hurling outfit and the 15 who make up the Kilkenny Club team line up on the Kennywood athletic field.

THE POINT IT is desired to make is merely this: Ever since John D. Holohan and other Hibernians decided to bring Ireland's favorite sport here, Pittsburghers have been asking, "What is hurling?" So, for the information of the curious, it may be explained that the game is akin to hockey or lacrosse and might even be called polo on foot. But it rather combines the features of those sports than parallels too closely the characteristics of any one of them. Each hurling player is equipped with a club called a hurley, and resembling the conventional hockey stick, except that it is curved. He endeavors to catch the ball at the end of his hurley and hurl it toward the enemy goal. And you will be surprised how successful these Irish are in doing just that.

A HURLING FIELD is 140 yards long and 80 yards wide, and at each end of the field is a goal, consisting of two uprights 16 feet high and 21 feet apart, with a crossbar eight feet above the ground. A net is suspended from the crossbar, and when the ball is hurled into the opponents' net it counts for three points. When it is hurled over the crossbar it counts for one point. Total points scored in two 30-minute periods decide the game.

It is permissable to pick up the ball with the hand, but it cannot be thrown, nor can the player run with it while it is in his hand. He can bat it with his stick or carry it on the narrow blade. If somebody's head, chest, back or shins should happen to be in the pathway of an inaccurate swing—well, that's all part of the game. The boys take the attitude that if your head isn't harder than a savagely swung hurley your place is on the sidelines as a spectator. It's a rough but lively game. You will enjoy it, Irish or not.

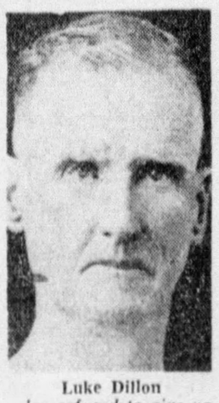
IF THE POWERS of the A. A. U. will consent to put on a race for sprinters around the 70-year mark at the coming annual national championship meet in Chicago, Pittsburgh will stand a good chance of coming out of the big games with at least one title to her credit.



Luke Dillon

For Luke Dillon, 68, in whom this city has one of the most remarkable runners of his age, is out with a challenge in which he offers to meet any man of his years in the country at a sprint distance, and running authorities agree that if he gets a chance to show his form in competition Dillon may demonstrate that he is without an equal among the veterans.

BORN IN ENGLAND, of Irish parents, Dillon has been in the United States since he was 7, and worked steadily from the age of 12 until he retired in 1932. His running days were almost ended while he was serving on a fire department at 41. A fire-horse planted a hoof on one of Dillon's feet, crushing the foot so badly that Luke was told he never could run again. Dillon refused to give up, however, and through sheer determination and patient treatment he became able to resume sprinting in later years. The veteran has been in athletics for half a century. During the winter he keeps himself in shape through club-swinging, shadow-boxing, bending exercises and long walks. As soon as the weather permits he resumes running. Two years ago he ran 100 yards at Schenley Oval in 11.3 seconds. Today he still can comb the cinder path in remarkable time for his years without showing any ill effects. William S. Haddock, president of the A. M. A., says he never has seen Dillon's equal at his age, and thinks Luke is entitled to be ranked as the champion veteran sprinter of the country.

LALLY IN LEAD IN FREE LINKS TITLE TEST

By TOM BIRKS

Francis Lally, several times a Pittsburgh representative in National public links championships, turned in a sensational 63, three under par, to pace a field of 40 at the finish of the first 18 holes of the 36-hole National public links qualifying test at the Schenley Park municipal course today.

The second 18-hole round is being played this afternoon.

The National tourney is to be staged at Portland, Ore., the first week in August, and because of the expense which a trip to the Pacific Coast entails, it was not regarded as likely that Pittsburgh would have more than one representative in the championship.

KAUFFMANN TRAILS

Lally's 63, which he achieved by going out in par 33 and then breezing home in 30, gave him a lead of two strokes over his nearest rivals—Jerome Rosenberg and Tom Barr, who had 34-31—65 and 33-32—65. Marty Boschert was among the leaders with 35-31—66, but Carl Kauffmann, former National champion and perennial leader in local public links competitions, was back in the field with 34-36—70. # BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

STOCK MARKET OUTRUNNING TRADE

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, June 19.—It may be well to pause a minute to get our bearings with reference to stock market averages and business conditions. Perhaps some old-fashioned statistical comparisons may be amusing in these inflationary "new deal" days.

The more comprehensive market averages have recovered bear market losses sufficiently to equal quotations in late September, 1931.

Now how does "business" stand?

We find that the physical volume of industrial production has spurted to equal the level of January, 1932, and steel production is back to the August, 1931, rate.

Factory employment, however, is only up to the level of January and February, 1933, and this about equals August-September, 1932. Railway freight traffic is at the levels of January, 1933, and October, 1932.

As regards 1926, while stocks average around 80 per cent of that level, the various indexes of industrial activity are only 50-60 per cent, ranging from 47 per cent and 49 per cent for steel production and freight traffic, to 64 per cent for general industrial production.

One might conclude that the physical output of industry has recovered in industrial stocks, although this is not the case with utility and railway stocks. The relatively low level of employment suggests trouble on the demand side. And as regards 1926, stocks have much overrun industrial recovery toward that level.

We find bank debits still below a year ago, and the same is true of department store sales, the latter being only about equal to the average of October and November last year. While stocks are about 80 per cent of the 1926 level, bank debits are about 50 per cent and retail trade about 62 per cent.

Thus, both the stock market and industrial production have outrun trade. One might have guessed this from the fact that factory payrolls are below a year ago, only up to February, 1933, and only about 35 per cent of their level in 1926.

Next, as to commodity prices. The Bureau of Labor statistics index is back only to where it stood in October last year. The more sensitive Bradstreet's index is up to October 1931, level. These indexes show wholesale prices to be only 62 64 per cent of the 1926 average.

If we multiply industrial volume by the average price of commodities, we get a sort of index of total value of output. This is up to early 1932 levels, and is only 40 per cent of 1926. It is quite a way below stocks at September, 1931, levels and 80 per cent of 1926.

In comparison with low levels in the 1921 depression, we find stocks averaging 20 to 25 per cent higher.

By comparison, the index of industrial production is only about 5 per cent above 1921 lows, while factory employment and railway freight traffic are still about 33 per cent under those lows! Commodity prices are about 30 per cent lower. Bank debts and production values are about 22 per cent below 1921.

General conclusions from such data are none too secure, but it seems fair to say that in comparison with 1931 levels the average of industrial stocks is in line with many wholesale prices and with industrial output.

As regards any 1926 "objective," business has a long way to go, and (unless it is a great deal more efficient in the way of net earnings) stocks have risen too far.

The point which most suggests caution is the relative backwardness of trade indexes, employment, and commodity prices. Of course, the inflationary program is directed toward boosting exactly these industries. Evidently stocks are registering bets that it will succeed, and that markets will be found for the raised volume of products.

CHICAGO HUNTS NEWS 'LEAKS'

CHICAGO, June 19.—(AP.)—News from Washington appears to be the dominant factor in the grain market at present. Traders are still of widely divergent opinions about the administration's wheat plan so that all news on the subject is received by them with high interest. Traders are about equally divided as to whether the plan should produce a bullish or bearish trend in the market.

Observers believe it has been demonstrated repeatedly, in the last several weeks, that middle western traders don't have as direct pipe lines to the source of market news at Washington as do Easterners. They say all recent "leaks" on important agricultural developments at the capital have been acted on first by houses "with eastern connections."

RISING PRICES OUTRUN WAGE ADVANCES

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Administration officials are beginning to show some concern over the fact that prices are rising faster than wages, and fear that it might retard a continuation of the recent improvement in industry.

The first task to be accomplished under the industrial recovery act will be to force business activity by creating jobs for millions of men, thus raising industrial wages, shortening hours and eliminating cut-throat price competition.

If purchasing power is not lifted, then existing prices cannot continue, and it is this prospect the administration is trying to avoid.

Food price advances were reported for butter, cheese, evaporated milk, rye and wheat flour, cornmeal, rice, dried fruits, most meats, coffee, lard, sugar and other foodstuffs.

Wage increases already have been announced by some industries. More will be announced later. It is hoped to let wages and purchasing power catch up with prices, rather than run the risk of having prices sag down to retard purchasing power.

STEEL'S RISING TREND HOLDS

CLEVELAND, June 19.—(AP.)—A rise of one point to 49 per cent of capacity in steel works operations was reported for the week just ended, by the magazine Steel today.

The review said the upward momentum, although somewhat slowed, persisted in practically all the leading production centers—and nowhere was there a recession.

Operations are expected to reach the 50 per cent mark this week for the first time since April, 1931, the magazine said. Tin plate mills operations were reported at 90 to 95 per cent, with all the independent mills in the Pittsburgh district at capacity. The review says:

"General expectations of price advances in third quarter are leading consumers to specify the limit of second-quarter contracts, which mills have until July 15 to complete. This is accelerating the volume of current business.

"Railroads are nearing the point where they will be able to make heavier commitments for general repair purposes. For the first time in three months the government is obtaining bids on postoffice projects, many to be closed in July.

"Pittsburgh steelworks continue to light blast furnaces; in three weeks of June, 11 stacks in that district will have resumed. Action has revived in scrap, with heavy sales and price advances."

Banks Changing Interest Policy

Payment of interest on demand deposits in Pittsburgh banks was discontinued as of June 15 under the provisions of the Glass-Steagall bill which became effective Friday when the President signed the bill. Since February 10 most banks here have been paying 1½ per cent interest on balances over $1,000. Previously 2 per cent had been paid on minimum balances of $500 in some cases and $1,000 in others. The new ruling does not affect savings accounts.

U. S. Cotton Mills Speed Operations

Favors Newspapers For Advertising

Charles J. Vopicka, president of the Atlas Brewing Company, Chicago, today announced that 80 per cent of the advertising of Atlas beer this year will be concentrated in newspapers.

Vopicka founded the Atlas Brewing Company in 1893, and is still active as its president.

BUSINESS

Petroleum Industry Finds Stable Basis

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

OIL—SECOND only to coal as a mismanaged industry—shows perhaps the greatest promise of securing benefits under the provisions of the industrial recovery act and the dictatorship of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson.

For the past five years the petroleum industry has been suffering from an acute case of over production. The difficulty went deeper than a mistaken estimate in market demand. It was due to the fundamental conditions surrounding the production of oil.

Oil production might be compared to two men with pumps drawing from the same tank. The man who pumped the fastest got the most. Oil wells in a single field are subject to the same condition. Provisions under which leases are made constitute another factor adding to the over production of petroleum. Most leases provide that a well must be drilled within a certain time and that a minimum royalty must be paid. These conditions force the bringing of much oil to the surface which might better be left under the ground. They have been responsible for the troubles in the petroleum industry.

Proration Attempts Fail to Check Output

FOR YEARS THE oil industry has been trying to regulate itself by agreement. Always there have been producers who would not abide by plans to regulate output. States have tried to bring runaway oil into check but they have not been successful. Always there have been fields which could not be controlled as a result of restrictions on the legal power of regulatory bodies. Even martial law declared by the governors of Texas and Oklahoma did not attain the desired results.

Now the federal government has an act with teeth in it and has appointed an industrial dictator who intends to bring oil into line. The oil industry was the only branch of the nation's business which was specifically mentioned in the industrial recovery act. This indicates the attitude of the administration toward the petroleum situation.

Control Anticipation Boosts Oil Prices

THE WORKING OUT of a code of fair practices for the oil industry, which would place the control of production and of prices in the hands of a federal administrative body, was followed last week by rises in quotations of oil prices in most of the important producing fields.

While some oil men opposed federal regulations on the ground that it might be a greater burden in the future than would be justified by the assistance to be given at present, the general attitude seems to be that at last someone should be able to take the bad boy operators by the ear and make them behave.

After many years of disorganization and chaos the oil operators are willing to try almost any cure—even a bitter dose of federal regulation which would have given them an acute case of the shivers a short time ago.

Corning Crude Oil Advanced 10 Cents

The South Penn Oil Company this morning announced an advance of 10 cents a barrel in Corning crude oil. The new price is 60 cents.

PLAN INVOLVES HUGE COTTON ACREAGE

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Secreary of Agriculture Wallace today announces a plan to retire at least 10,000,000 acres from the current cotton crop, and to levy a processing tax to provide funds for paying benefits to farmers for such curtailment.

The entire plan is made conditional upon the acceptance by a sufficient number of farmers of the contracts offered to retire whatever the department decides is the minimum reduction in production which it will accept.

Secretary Wallace indicated that the utmost minimum of reduction he would think worth while accepting is 2,000,000 bales and suggested that over 3,000,000 bales would be a better minimum.

GROWERS GET OPTION

A processing tax will be levied about August 1, the secretary said. He did not state the probable amount of this tax as he did in announcing the wheat plan.

Farmers will be given an option to purchase an amount of the government supply of 2,335,000 bales, equivalent to the reduction which they achieve in production. If they use this option, which will give them the cotton at 6 cents a pound, they will be given an additional rental benefit payment amounting to from $6 per acre to $12 per acre. If they do not care to use the option on the cotton pool they will be given an outright rental cash payment of from $7 per acre to $20 per acre.

INVOLVES CURRENT CROPS

The cost of these benefits will be from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000. The cost to the Secretary of Agriculture of the pooled cotton was about 9½ cents, while this cotton will be offered to farmers under the option plan at 6 cents per pound.

The Secretary suggested that while the plan is to run for only the current year, some plans may be made later to link up the current reduction with a curtailment of next year's and other years' crops.

U. S. to Eliminate Farm News Service

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(AP.)—Secretary Wallace said today that the market news service of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics will be eliminated July 1 to save the Department of Agriculture approximately $1,000,000 a year.

Most of the 300 men maintained at market centers for grain, livestock, cotton and other farm commodities will be dropped from the payrolls.

Chesapeake's May Net Exceeds 1932

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP.)—The Chesapeake & Ohio, first large railroad to make public May income figures, today reported net railway operating income for last month of $2,728,935 against $2,263,072 in May, 1932. Gross was $8,380,631 compared with $7,588,623 a year ago.

Soft Coal Output Expands Sharply

WASHINGTON, June 19.—Production of bituminous coal during the week ended June 10 is estimated by the Bureau of Mines at 5,435,000 tons, compared with 4,491,000 in the previous week and 3,975,000 in the like 1932 week.

Market's Action Reveals Tie-Up With Dollar Fluctuations

That a very substantial part of the current speculation in securities remains keyed to fluctuations in the dollar need no longer be doubted. True, the pronounced pick-up in business activity has lent itself readily to speculation for the rise, but the market's action in the past week has disclosed the close tie between exchange fluctuations and stock movements. Business news over week-end continued good, but the market drew its chief impetus toward higher levels from the renewed slump in the dollar as measured in sterling and francs. The pound setrling started with a gain of more than 6 cents, which was later extended, and francs followed the move against the dollar in proportion, generating a brisk fresh demand for stocks.

The "code of competition" for the petroleum industry as finally adopted almost unanimously by representatives of practically every producer in the United States places the industry in the most favorable position in its history. It provides for elimination of virtually all factors which have forced the industry to its recent low levels and which made it almost impossible for any company to operate profitably so far this year. Crudep rices well above those in effect at present are said to be virtually assured by the clause on price.

Stabilization of currency is only one part of the general Economic Conference problems and will not be singled out for settlement, but only in conjuction with tariffs, amament reduction, other international trade problems and internal budget conditions of the various countries, high Treasury officials stated today. Meanwhile, the United States does not intend to either support nor depress the dollar in foreign exchange and will let it find its natural level unless there is speculative activity or unless there is a flight of capital from the dollar, in which event the Federal Reserve machinery will be put into action.

Conditions within the United States would suggest for the new dollar a weight about 60 per cent of that of the old dollar. The objective aimed at by the Roosevelt administration, for domestic purposes, is the 1926 price level of goods. To attain the 1926 price level of goods the dollar would need to have about 60 to 65 per cent of its present value. Sixty per cent of the gold in the old dollar would be 13.93 grains, as against a former 23.22 grains.

The liquor and beer stocks came to the fore again as the market resumed its main advance. Led by National Distillers and Owens, Illinois Glass, this group bolted ahead rather spectacularly through the middle of the day. Distillers was in the van of the movement coincident with reports that negotiations are on looking toward an agreement with United States Industrial Alcohol for the setting up of a jointly owned subsidiary which would undertake cutting and blending of its liquors. A really potent factor, however, was the realization that three more states, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Iowa, will go to the polls on the repeal question tomorrow.

The Standard Statistic Company in its weekly summary of the general business situation, says:

"The extent of the business revival has outrun practically all hopes and predictions of six weeks ago. Activity at the steel mills is especially noteworthy and promises to carry industry with sustaining momentum into the summer period when operations normally recede. Beyond that point lies the possible further stimulus from the marketing of the summer and autumn crops at remunerative prices."

WASHABLE PURSE

PURSE SLIP COVERS PATTERN NO. 468

By LAURA WHEELER

Every once in a while, fashion invents an accessory that not only is the last word in smartness, but also fills a crying need of the well-dressed woman. This summer we have the purse slip cover, that boon to the woman who wants her white accessories to be an immaculate white. This new vogue also gives her the opportunity of having a purse to harmonize with every dress, simply by having a variety of slip covers for one foundation purse. Very easy to make, these slip covers (which can be made of any washable material) come completely off the foundation purse and can be tubbed. Many of these purse covers are embellished with a touch of embroidery—a bit of cross-stitch in white or in a matching color on a pastel material—a tiny bunch of flowers in one contrasting color or in a number of delicate shades.

Pattern No. 468 includes a transfer pattern of the two purse covers illustrated; one cross-stitch motif and two small floral motifs; detailed instructions with yardage requirements for making the slip covers; and directions for making the foundation purse itself.

STOCKS LEAP FORWARD ON INFLATION

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP.)—Financial markets leaped forward with renewed gusto today as the American dollar dropped sharply in foreign exchange markets and the Washington administration indicated disapproval of currency stabilization at existing rates.

With inflationary psychology once more to the fore and business and industry continuing to march steadily forward, there was a rush of buyers in stocks and commodities, which carried trading volumes to sizeable proportions. Shares, up 1 to around 6 points at one time, erased a substantial part of their last week's setback. Wheat sputted around 2 cents a bushel on dollar depreciation and expectations of an international acreage reduction agreement. Cotton advanced about $1 a bale and corn stepped up some 2 cents a bushel. Silver futures also gained about cent an ounce.

The so-called "wet" group of stocks, idle recently, moved into the forefront of the rally, with National Distillers, United States Industrial Alcohol, American Commercial Alcohol and Owens-Illinois advancing 4 to 6 or more points.

Hope that the upswing in business will prove strong enough to overcome the usual mid-summer let-down was expressed by executives who have just returned from the annual convention of the National Association of Purchasing Agents. In the event that an August recession in business does occur, it was said, the reaction probably would be of limited duration and would give way in a few weeks to a permanent general revival promoted by the national industrial recovery program. Hand-to-mouth buying, which has been the rule until recently, apparently is being superseded by commitments placed 90 days or more ahead.

Analysts point out that business generally has risen some 40 per cent above the triple-depression bottom registered in early July last year, again at the turn of the year and finally at the time of the bank holiday in March. Economic observers also estimate that business has recovered about 40 per cent of the ground lost between the 1929 peak and the depression low. At the same time, however, analytical experts find that the level of activity is still around the lows of the 1920-21 decline. In connection with this thought, some financiers believe the present level of activity may prove fairly stable and that actual monetary inflation will not be necessary as a further stimulus.

Both exports and imports of merchandise again declined in May, the former to $114,000,000 and the latter to $107,000,000. In the 1932 month exports totaled $131,899,000 and imports $112,276,000. Exports of gold for the first five months of the year aggregated only $89,322,000 against $541,721,000 in the same 1932 period, while imports advanced to $182,378,000 compored with $127,780,000.

COTTON SOARS ON BUYING

NEW YORK, June 19.—Cotton futures opened firm, 19 to 26 higher in response to higher Liverpool cables and the advance in foreign exchange. July, 9.10; October, 9.38; December, 9.59; January, 9.66; March, 9.81; May, 9.92.

Trading was active at the start with demand attributed to the trade, commission houses, Liverpool and continental account.

The market held fairly steady, although reacting slightly from the best under scattered realizing with July quoted at around 9.11 and December at 9.51 at the end of the first half hour, or 15 to 20 points net higher.

Fluctuations later in the morning were rather irregular, reflecting uncertainty over the announcement of cotton acreage control. The market declined to 9.11 for July and 9.49 for December, but then rallied to 9.23 and 9.65, respectively, by midday, or 26 to 30 points net higher. The first word of the Washington acreage announcements was immediately followed by some reselling, causing setbacks of about 8 to 11 points from the best. July selling at 9.15 and December at 9.56 at around 12:15 o'clock.

VICIOUS CIRCLE OF DEPRESSION BROKEN

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, June 19.—Irrespective of causes, it becomes increasingly apparent that the vicious circle of the depression has been broken.

A new spiral of cumulative recovery is under way, and thus far the upward trend since mid-March has not yet been broken.

Mr. Rukeyser

The hopeful aspect lies in a recognition of the fact that in a modern economic society in the power age we employ one another. Each time a group of hitherto idle men returns to work, it signifies a further spread of employment, for, as the unemployed get back to work, they become effective consumers once more. Likewise, the economically disfranchised farmers are approaching a stage where they will return increasingly to the market place for industrial products.

In the circumstances, with progress being made, there is sensitivity in the financial district to any proposed restraints at the London conference to the freedom of action of the United States in its present effort toward a managed recovery.

FREEDOM STRESSED

Since the keynote of President Roosevelt's domestic economic policy was to reserve discretion for the executive, it would seem inconsistent for the administration unnecessarily to tie its hands by inelastic agreements with other nations. At home the mere threat of inflation was enough to get business off the dead center and to cause a reversal of the downward trend in the price level.

From an American standpoint, it would be desirable to reinterpret our economic program and make it clear that the best contribution that we can make toward the world situation would be to put our own house in order. We ought to encourage other nations to apply similar technique in their own countries, substituting conscious management for mere chance in the economic cycle. To the extent that other nations, likewise concentrating primarily on their home markets, could work in similar directions in respect to the price level, the American experiment would be bolstered. If our price level were close to a satisfactory world level, it would be helpful to that part of our export trade to which we are legitimately entitled. Furthermore, there would be less fear of excessive imports, for political barriers would then be supported by natural factors.

EUROPE COMPETITOR

As the London conference focusses attention on international economics there is growing recognition that most European countries are our competitors, rather than our natural customers. North and South trade seems more in accord with actual conditions.

Meantime, the trek of men back to work at home is beginning to help retail sales. The heightening of factory output is reflected in a new high consumption of electric power for the year.

With the trend upward, the federal government hopes to accelerate the process by employing a million additional men in public works by the fall. Heretofore, the public works remedy has been limited in its effect because it has been offset by withdrawals from activity by private interests. This time both are ready to march in the same direction simultaneously.

Business just now is very much interested in the working out of the industrial recovery act, and, though conservative theorists are wary, practical executives seem to welcome the experiement in rationalized industry.

The setback in the stock market seems definitely ascribable to internal technical factors.

WHEAT SPURTS ON CROP NEWS

CHICAGO, June 19.—Sharp upturns in grain values early today accompanied reports of severe crop damage to spring wheat both American and Canadian.

Damage was attributed largely to excessive high temperatures. Opening ¾-1⅞ up, wheat afterward rose further. Corn started at ½-1-cent advance, and subsequently held near the initial range, with oats outdoing the season's high price record.

In addition to crop damage northwest, a jump of seven points in British exchange was construed as a bullish factor as to wheat. Strength shown both by securities and the cotton market had a contributory stimulating effect.

General commission house buying and a relative dearth of offerings kept the wheat market pointed upward, with price setbacks slight and transient. Corn and oats as well as wheat soon showed advances of more than 2 cents a bushel, with oats in some cases the highest since 1930. Provisions rose with grains, despite downturns of hog values.

FURLOUGHS SET FOR MAIL MEN

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(INS.)—Postmaster General Farley today ordered all postal service employes, except rural carriers, to take a nine-day payless furlough between July 1 and September 30.

In lieu of the furlough rural carriers are to take a 75 per cent reduction in their equipment maintenance allowance for the three-month period.

The Postoffice Department estimates that as a result of these two orders, both of which were approved by President Roosevelt, it will save approximately $9,500,000. Farley said:

"Mail volume is now picking up, postoffice revenues are increasing. It is the department's hope that by the end of September business conditions will have so improved as to require again a full completement of postal employes to handle the work and eliminate the necessity for a continuation of the furloughs."

A.E.F. VETERANS BOOM SHANNON

NEW CASTLE, Pa., June 19.—(AP.)—Resolutions urging Lieut. Gov. Edward C. Shannon to run as a Republican candidate for governor in 1934, were unanimously adopted yesterday by the Society of the 28th Divison, A. E. F.

Protest of Priest Brings Arrest of 13

Thirteen men, arrested near Old St. Patrick's Church on complaint of the Rev. Father James R. Cox yesterday, were to be arraigned today in Forty-third Street Police Court. Father Cox complained, police said, the men were insulting members of his congregation because they refused to pay them for wiping off their automobiles.

AUDACIOUS GIRL REVEALS SECRETS OF SOUTHERN SEAS

CHAPTER XXIX.

Not far from the plantation limits lies the native village of Awar, which except for occasional government patrols and the plantation owners themselves, has been untouched by white influence.

On a beautiful, lazy afternoon we set out to invade the bush village of Awar, the planter and his wife and myself. Old bullock-cart ruts made a fairly good road for the motor lorry to carry us to the outer rim of the plantation. We stopped here and there through the plantation at copra driers to investigate the day's progress.

We were headed for the bush village to buy sacsac, which is the pith of the sago palm, to help feed the plantation labor. The plantation ended at a swift-flowing river tributary; our legs must carry us the rest of the way.

A swaying bridge of saplings lashed with lawyer vines brought us to a cleared space surrounded by half a dozen large native houses built on six-foot piles. In the center, under a shelter, stood the inevitable garamut, a glorified tom-tom made from a great hollowed-out log. A few scantily clad heathens stood as silent as statues at our approach, watching us narrowly but with no antagonism. This village was but a suburb of the larger, finer one, where dwelt the luluai (chief). A wide, palm-shaded path invited us deeper into the jungle; flowering plants and red-leaved bushes made the way sweet and beautiful. Six or seven naked pickaninnies followed us—sprung from the bush apparently, for we had not seen them in the village. They scattered like deer when we tried to make friends with them. Obviously the rising generation had misgivings about these tall white beings. Then, with a sudden turning, we came upon a great clearing, around which 20 large stilt-houses of woven palm made a circular rim.

INVESTIGATES VILLAGE

It being well past midday, the women were busy; the bush kanaka eats twice a day, and this was meal-time. Our advent made little stir.

"Luluai, 'im 'e stop?" we inquired of a betel-chewing native who squatted cross-legged in the shade of a narrow veranda.

"Im 'e stop," he answered without disturbing himself; and as he spoke the head man came forward, an old codger with rheumy eyes, wisps of feathers in his grass, and snags of betel-stained teeth. Grinning sociably, he held out a horny paw to the planter, whom he knew well. A great pile of pink sacsac stood in a corner of the village, and the planter indicated that he would like to buy some of it. But the luluai would not sell, not for love or tobacco.

I wanted to investigate the village. After shaking hands with the luluai we set out on a tour of exploration, followed by a crowd of kanakas, stung to active curiosity by our presence.

As usual the garamut had place of honor in the village. Awar's garamut was a magnificent work of art, elaborately carved in symbolic fish, animal, reptile and floral figures. These garamuts — huge drums — are marvels of patient workmanship. Through an incision about two and a half inches wide and two feet long the entire inside pulp of the tree is worked out with the natives' bare hands. Then the interior is burned and smoothed and smoked out to insure dryness and resonance. After that comes the carving and coloring, and sometimes the inlaying of mother of pearl.

To play it a native beats a staccato with a long slender pole held loosely in his two fists. Thus these savages have a swift and sure wireless system. The sound carries for many miles. Nights in New Guinea are palpitant with the booming of garamuts. A message goes out from a village—a broken rhythm, beaten into the darkness. It ceases for a second, as if for a breath, and then is taken up again insistently. Finally it is silenced, and only the lesser monotones prevail. Then from a different point in the brooding hills comes the answer, a fitful tattoo intelligible to the savage black hordes but utterly beyond us, the handful of Europeans huddled in the valley.

Sometimes, out there, you love the sound of the big garamuts and the smaller kundus; it melts with the wizardry of moon-hung, fragrant nights, and its steady monotone soothes your indolent brain. But there are other times when the maddening insistence of the throbbing drums seems to beat into your consciousness like a trip-hammer. Yet it is always there, the heartbeat of New Guinea; there is no shutting it out . . . zuhm-zuhm-zuhm . . . always there . . . always there. . . .

MEAL TIME AGAIN

Now, after many months away from the islands, the beat is still in my ears, or my brain—almost as clearly as when I dwelt on the jungle's edge. Now, as I write about it, I can hear the hollow beat. I think it will never entirely leave me. I don't know whether its insistence is warning me to stay here where I was born, or is irrevocably calling me back. I don't know—yet.

It was meal-time at Awar village—4 o'clock, and the excitement of our advent waning, the men of the village gradually retired to a stilt-raised, covered platform. The planter was still trying to buy sacsac; there seemed plenty of it stacked in beautiful pink piles here and there. So his wife and I strolled over to a long grass roof under which a group of marys were busy. This was the house-cook; the big meal of the day was in preparation. On a long table of bamboo poles were rows of elliptical wooden bowls, elaborately carved, "boys" bowls, each filled with glutinous gray sacsac. In the cooking it had lost its pinkness.

On top of each bowl, arranged with surprising daintiness, five little raw silver fish radiated from a sprig of herb. The bright-eyed women pressed around the two of us, eager to touch us. The planter's wife they knew; indeed, one of them carried a hurt arm in a sling which the white woman had made not long ago. Here, as the world over, hospitality made its gracious gesture in the offer of food. It took all our combined tact to convince the chattering marys that we were not hungry. Attractive as the presentation was, I could not eat the slimy cooked sacsac.

HOMELY SAVAGES

But the men were squatted on the platform waiting to be fed. In a procession the women carried to them their carved bowls. I followed. Melanesian men are ugly! Their mouths were filthy from betel-nut, and their discolored teeth but snags. Their bodies were almost without exception afflicted with kuskus, a scaling ringworm infection. Some of them had placed on the platform beside them a loathsome cud of betel-and-lime, to be resumed after kaikai. Their faces were welted with tribal markings, sinister and dour in expression, with none of the eager good-humor of the little brown women who ministered to them.

In the center of the dais reposed a huge, beautifully carved bowl, piled a foot high with snowy, delicious shredded cocoanut. To eat with, each horrendous male was equipped with a segment of iridescent mother-of-pearl—a carved, shimmering, color-lit thing of great beauty. A spoon, this, such as I had never seen before. For drink, there was the cool and tingling liquid of koolau (young cocoanut), quaffed from a hole in the top of the green gourd. Such, then, is the principal meal of Awarians.

The other white woman and I strolled back to the shelter where the marys were again collected, followed by a flock of wide-eyed pickaninnies. One mite possessed herself of me; she seemed enchanted, and kept her small nose glued now to my arm and again to my hand, in which I carried a handkerchief. Thought I: "I have made a conquest of this small jungle person! She finds much in me to be admired and liked!" I said that here was a discerning young heathen. But, alas, my ego was deflated with a bang. She did not love me; she loved the eau de cologne which I had used on my handkerchief and arms. I had ceased to be conscious of its fragrance, but it was a new and entrancing odor to her; so I gave her my handkerchief.

Some of the marys were busy making themselves new wardrobes. The Rue de la Paix is no more concerned with the hang and set of a garment than is the bush woman of the effect of her pulpul. Bunches of ribboned palm fronds hung drying from the cross-poles of the roof. Some older women squatted on the ground, working away on the dried grass.

A pulpul involves little expense but considerable labor. Pandanus palm fronds must be cut and gathered. Then the palm fingers are teased with long-toothed wooden combs into soft silky fringes of almost hair-like fineness. Then the yellowed fringes are hung up to bleach and dry, and they must be well dried or they will not dye properly. Then comes the coloring process, done with pigments made of berries and barks. Splendid effects are achieved, and patterns vary; sometimes the skirt is henna or brown; sometimes the tiers contrast; occasionally the whole is in stripes of contrasting colors, or in a checkerboard effect.

A SESSION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS AT THE OPENING MEETING AT ROME, MAY 15, 1920

This council is an assembly of representatives of nations. Their covenant, written for the most part by President Wilson and incorporated in the Treaty of Versailles (1919), is a document obligating its members to the promotion of international peace and security, "open door" policies, maintenance and respect for all treaty obligations, firm establishment and understanding of international laws. The League consists of a representative assembly, a council and a secretariat at Geneva. It has succeeded in preventing several minor wars, settling disputes over borderlines between smaller countries, aiding in securing international loans, etc. It is by no means perfect, however. UNIFICATION OF THE VISION IN THE TWO EYES

Phenol (carbolic acid, $C_6H_5OH$) heated with formaldehyde ($CH_2O$) in the presence of an acid catalyzer results in a brittle, fusible resinous product. By further heating with hexamethylene tetramine and lime under pressure, these are converted into an insoluble and unfusible resin, called after the inventor (L. H. Baekeland) bakelite. This is used for insulating parts of electrical apparatus and also for phonograph records, buttons, etc. (Deming: General Chemistry).

This League Court consists of 11 judges and four deputy-judges, chosen by the council and assembly of the League of Nations. It may hear and rule upon questions relating to interpretation of treaties and international law, but acceptance of its jurisdiction is not compulsory unless all involved parties agree in advance. The League Court also acts as advisory body to the League. (World's History).

MODERN INCANDESCENT LAMP (Mazda)

The modern lamp consists of a thin tungsten filament in a flint-glass bulb containing argon gas. Electric current (usually 100 to 115 volts in homes) heats the filament to white heat, giving a light intensity of about 15 lumens per consumed watt. One lumen = one candlepower illumination per square foot. Right: A filament-winding machine, operated through microscope. Inserts: Photo and microphoto of the filament. The life of a Mazda lamp is about 1,000 hours. The smallest made uses ¾ of a watt (for surgical instruments), the largest 50,000 watts (for motion picture production work). The cost of current per hour = price of one kilowatt-hour times watt consumption of the lamp over 1,000. Example: If 6 cents is paid for one kilowatt-hour, burning one 100-watt Mazda lamp an hour costs 6x100/1000 = 0.6 of 1 cent.

The Bug Howls Reform

Must make a note to keep away from there. Us waders are only good up to three feet with high heels.

Took our first dip in the ocean yesterday and hung to the ropes like wash to a Monday. We only swim three quick strokes and we always arrange to direct that trio of spasmodic semaphores toward the shore and high taxes.

Not that we would be missed any. But we don't want to make drowning a popular sport.

For the benefit of those who will not be fortunate enough to see the ocean this season we want to state the girls have caught up to Chunga Dhin in front and passed him in the back.

The painting was labeled September Morn. The girls on the beach hang around all morn and the afternoon too.

We are not an old mossbacked reformer. But we think they can carry this health business too far. At the present time the only thing left to the imagination is the paper from the picnic lunch basket.

If this squawk classifies us a Pop Grundy then we must accept the nomination and run on the reform ticket.

We might win. But looking around the beach we know full well that we would have a tough time getting eight other Grundies for our cabinet.

The County's Shame

The Evidence of Election Fraud Gathered by U. S. Agents Reflects on the Local Authorities

As indictment after indictment is returned by the United States grand jury investigating election frauds in Allegheny County in the Congressional election of last November, a state of affairs is revealed that must amaze even those who thought themselves familiar with conditions.

We learn from the grand jury, for example, that 254 votes cast for Congressman Michael J. Muldowney and 251 cast for Senator James J. Davis in the First District of the Third Ward were false and untrue, that 141 for Muldowney and 194 for Davis in the Second District were false and untrue, that 122 for Muldowney and 79 for Davis in the Sixth District were false and untrue. And these are just samples.

What a reflection it is on the county authorities that they did not discover this evidence, that they did not draw these indictments!

What a shame that it has been left to United States agents and the United States District Court, which has only very limited powers for dealing with election frauds, to expose the mess and protect the votes of honest citizens!

Scarcity of Apprentices

Ambitious Youths May Find It to Their Advantage To Learn a Skilled Trade

Prospective students are registering today for the summer courses at the Carnegie Institute of Technology. Apropos of that, the Bureau of Employment at Harrisburg has issued a report which it may prove to the advantage of ambitious youths to consider.

A. W. Motley, director of the bureau, states that since 1930 practically all industrial plants in Pennsylvania have discontinued their training of apprentices. Previously they maintained classes for the development of workers in such skilled trades as boilermaking, patternmaking, toolmaking, molding and other machine crafts.

Because of the cessation of this training, forced by the industrial shutdown, there are few unemployed men under 25, Motley says, who are thoroughly experienced in any trade. He looks for a shortage of skilled workers when industry gets back to normal.

The bureau is asking employers to begin now, if possible, to train men for industrial trades.

Pittsburgh youths have superior opportunities for learning skilled crafts in the facilities offered by the Carnegie Institute of Technology and other local educational institutions, as well as by our varied manufacturing plants.

Municipal Forests

Publicly Owned Woodlands May Return an Appreciable Revenue to Pennsylvania Communities

The arrival of 175 men of the Civilian Conservation Corps for work in the county forest in North Park calls attention to some interesting possibilities.

Allegheny County is one of 21 boroughs, cities and counties in Pennsylvania which own municipal forests. The total area of the state's municipal forests is 14,690 acres; but this may be greatly enlarged, for 412,000 acres of forest land have been taken over by Pennsylvania counties for nonpayment of taxes, and it is possible that some of this land may be retained by the counties or sold to cities, boroughs and townships and converted into municipal forests.

While most of our municipal forests were created to protect water supplies, or, as in the case of the Allegheny County forest, for recreation, they present opportunities for commercial exploitation.

Some of the municipal forests of Central Europe, which have been under careful management for many years, return annually a revenue which appreciably reduces the municipal tax rate.

A Question of Ethics

The Propriety of County Detectives Appearing as Character Witnesses is Debatable

When County Detectives Michael Ford and Peter P. Connors appeared as character witnesses for the defense in the case of Burgess John J. Cavanaugh, of Homestead, C. J. McBride and William Dee, accused of tax assessment irregularities, but found not guilty, Assistant County Solicitor Ralph H. Frank, who has been assisting in the prosecution, withdrew. He said:

"I will not participate in the prosecution of a case in which the District Attorney's employes openly work for the acquittal of the defendants."

This raises a nice question of ethics.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park defends the county detectives' course by saying:

"My employes are all subject to subpena."

The implication is that the detectives could not help themselves.

It is only common sense, however, that no defendant would call character witnesses who strenuously objected to testifying.

The Poll Tax

There Is Much to be Said in Favor of Abolishing This Requirement For Voting

On the ground that hundreds of thousands of Pennsylvanians are so impoverished that they cannot afford to pay the poll tax of 50 cents, and so will be disfranchised, an effort was made at the last session of the Legislature to reduce the tax to one cent.

The effort failed, but the people of the state will have an opportunity to pass on the same question in another form next November. One of the proposed constitutional amendments on which they will vote eliminates from the requirements for voting the provision that a state or county tax shall have been paid within two years.

There is much to be said in favor of the amendment. The tax requirement does not prevent the henchmen of the political machines from voting, for the bosses see to it that their followers are supplied with tax receipts; but it undoubtedly keeps many independent citizens away from the polls.

Under the Magnifying Glass

By Nelson Harding

Right upon the dot they'll pay off
Uncle Sam, the easy lender,
He whom they call "Uncle Shylock."

Europe's magnifying lenses
And the specs of Uncle Sammy
Give it different proportions,
They depend upon the viewpoint.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

No More Cassanovas

Fashions in lovers and heroes seem to change, almost as rapidly as the fashions in feminine figures. The Romeos of today are the laughs of tomorrow.

This is forcibly illustrated in Ramon Navarro's revival of the Sheik—but a brand new sort of sheik. A sheik with a sense of humor! Where are the sheiks of yesteryear? Those reckless, irresistible cavemen—those high-powered, high-handed woman-tamers—who could beat a woman up with one hand while they caressed her with the other?

Boudoirs and burning kisses, even on the screen, have given place to zoos, morgues, gangster hang-outs and haunted houses; and heart-thrills have been replaced by curdled blood. You've simply GOT to have your blood curdled if you go to the pictures, these days, whether you like it or not.

But when you come to heroes and lovers, whether on the stage or in real life, the "regular" man appears to be coming into his own, at last. You know the kind I mean—the clean, sensible, decent, upstanding, well-bred sort of fellow, with a few ideas above skirt-chasing and a few ideals above money-chasing.

The clear-sighted, keen-witted, wage-earning girl of today likes her men "regular" and without all the fancy trimmings. So far out of the picture are the false alarms, that if a man happens to be a born heart-breaker or a Don Juan by nature he carefully camouflages that fact, under a frank, modest, comradely manner, and keeps all his vamping a dark secret.

He knows that the Big Boy pose and the woman-killer attitude merely make a girl yawn and that what he used to consider his "hot line" only gives her "that tired feeling."

Love, today, is a matter of understanding, not of conquest on either side. There are, no doubt, plenty of left-over sheiks prowling around hither and yon, but the old Cassanova stuff has lost its charm; and they must disguise themselves as gentlemen to impress a sophisticated girl. The old tricks are as easy for her to see through as cellophane—and the old 'line" positively CREAKS.

A man has to have something more than a fancy line of chatter, a pair of soulful eyes and a good dancing foot and something more than a hollow space under his glazed curly hair, to be a big shot with the modern girls.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 19.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and a letter from Harry Leon Wilson for "Pop" Gibson and me to join him at the Bohemian jinx. Aboard and came upon Col. Percy Crosby in town from Virginia, Sah! and he told of an actor in Oslo, Norway, named Odd Frogg. So to sit with Bill Hamilton awhile.

Working and talking to Jerry Blum, the painter, who has returned to Washington Square after seven years in Paris. Then with my wife to Judge William Young's and many there, including Dot Aylesworth, Isabelle Leighton, Dean and Mildred Cornwell and the wondrously shirted Frank Storrs.

Dinner at Theodore Dreiser's in Mt. Kisco and we fell to singing spirituals, very sweet, also songs of the 90's including "On the Banks of the Wabash" where Dreiser was born. Home in the moonlight.

Everybody has a parrot story, but my favorite was told by the late Alf Ringling. He owned a bird that was caged in the circus ticket wagon and had picked up the patter of the ticket sellers. In an Arkansas town one day the parrot suddenly walked out and could not be found. The entire circus joined in the hunt. On the evening of the next day a flock of ravaging crows, each with a green feather in its mouth, circled over a dismal swamp. On a stump perched the forlorn and bewildered parrot stripped clean save a few pin feathers underneath. Valiantly it was squawking the patois of the ticket wagon: "There's no hurry! Aw-w-k! Take your time—one by one. Aw-w-k! The big show is just starting. Aw-w-k!"

The most extravagant beard foliating hereabouts since Alexander Dowie's was at Music Hall the other evening. To the waist, it spread luxuriously over the expansive chest of a gentleman distinctly Russian. "If I were a flea," sighed Irvin Cobb pointing, "I'd swim the Mississippi, running with ice, to winter in that."

This year I pay no income tax.
Thanks Mr. Goldmann, thanks

One of New York's perplexities to Roark Bradford was the profusion of screaming fire wagons through the streets every hour or so, yet no one ever sees a fire. In my years the only fire I beheld in New York was when dispatched as a reporter to the Triangle Shirt Waist Fire, 20 years ago. That suffices for a lifetime. On sleepless nights I often have to banish the horror of the memory of a terrified young girl reeling out of a high flame-surrounded window, and crashing entirely through one of those glass and iron sidewalk gratings.

Thingumabobs: The Prince of Wales' Cairn is named "Cora" . . . Roy Chapman Andrews is outfitting a penthouse atop the Hotel des Artistes in Chinese decor . . . A. C. Blumenthal gave Elizabeth Young, cinema's newest promise, her first stage job . . . Anita Loos, taking her first automobile lesson, drove through the door of a San Diego saloon . . . Gana Walska is reported losing her voice . . . ex-King Alfonso is sending out "feelers" about a trip to America . . . Conrad Aiken, who writes the gravest poetry and prose, saw his mother killed and his father commit suicide when he was 11 years old . . . Two New Yorkers are said to be announcing openly they have more than a million each in hoarded gold, and so what? . . . The Theodore Dreisers have a white Russian wolf hound named "Nickey."

For years I've scanned the horizon futilely for a starving poet in frayed garments. The most opulent people are modern minnesingers—from well-fed Berton Braley to the country gentlemanish John Drinkwater and dandyfied Samuel Hoffenstein. Imagine Charlie Towne gnawing at an attic crust? Or Edna St. Vincent Millay warming frail hands over the last guttering candle?

The only time I ever broke out in a poem, the effort was read before the home Browning Society and the weekly paper mentioned everything on the program but it. Yet for weeks I wandered around with a soulful look.

Isn't It So?

Avoid extremes and shun the fault of such who still are pleased too little or too much.

He has received a favor who has granted one to a worthy person.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I've started a Private War—and it promises to be a pip!

It began as a one-gal campaign against these Luncheon Tenors.

For years I've been trooping around, grabbing noon-day snacks at country inns. Time was when such repasts were silent, solitary affairs. But that was before the livery stables went out and Service Clubs came in—and all the boys went in for weekly bouts of Fried Chicken a la Sweet Adeline. So now I have to fight my way through an assortment of Lions, Rotarians, Kiwanisans and other Blithesome Brotherhoods, all intent on their weekly frolic.

Now, mind you, I've nothing against males—if they're content to be males. Nor Service Clubs—if they're really serving. But when Big Business Men become yodlers, and Service Clubs spend their time tittering and tenoring, why, I've got to be shown they are functioning according to schedule.

And I insist they do—and they aren't.

I'll put it up to you, you've listened to 'em and watched them at their little play-games as often as I.

Did you ever know of one of these Fruit-Salad Conferences that cut out the crooning and kidding and got down to a little constructive cussing?

Did you ever hear of them facing facts, instead of swapping wisecracks; or acting as if the National Anthem was a he-man's fighting code, instead of just part of the chocolate sundae?

No, you didn't!

Yet these are the Big Boys who are going to save our country—maybe. But the best thing they do is to have songfests and hand each other a lot of sweet kisses about what Wonderful Guys they are, and how swell their business is, and let's-spring-a-good-one-on - Bill - because - his - wife - just-had-twins.

Now, I ask you!

So that's why I started my war. And now it's spreading to include a lot of other 20th century phenomena which are as yet unclassified, but are nevertheless going over strong with an admiring public, and themselves.

Am I getting recruits?

Here's just one extract—

"ATTA GIRL! EVEN IF THE JOKE IS ON MY SEX, KEEP UP YOUR FIGHT AGAINST THE LUNCHEON TENORS. THEY'RE ON A PAR WITH THE SINGING SISSIES WHO MESS UP OUR RADIO. LISTENING TO THEM, I OFTEN WONDER WHAT THE NEXT GENERATON WILL BE LIKE. HOW CAN REAL CHILDREN COME FROM SUCH SPINELESS WORMS? AND HOW DID WE GET THIS WAY?"

We got this way, stranger, because WE ALL WENT YELLOW. Life became too much for us—too much for our bewildered brains and timid spirits. We wanted to duck it all—to go sweet and sappy instead of sour and scrappy. And so, as soon as we get to wanting, we got what we wanted.

WE GOT SINGING SISSIES—LUNCHEON TENORS—BOYS THAT BEAM INSTEAD OF BATTLE.

What will the next generation be like?

Well, if this sort of thing keeps up, it's my hunch they'll be a bunch of musical powder puffs, with lovely dimples just-like-papa.

Now YOU guess!

The Human Side of the News

A Thousand Dollar Gold Certificate Received by the Conscience Fund—The Penitent Who Sent $80,000—A Little Girl's Confession

By EDWIN C. HILL

SOMEWHERE among the 120 millions a man, or possibly a woman, sleeps a little sounder tonight because of a note he, or she, dropped to Secretary Woodin the other day, enclosing a single gold certificate worth $1,000, to be added to the Conscience Fund. Thus for the past 122 years the erring nephews and nieces of Uncle Sam have been squaring themselves with him and with that little inward voice by returning, in amounts of from two cents to $80,000, what they have cheated him out of in many and different ways.

It all began back in 1811 when a troubled soul sent $250 to President James Madison. To date more than $600,000 have traveled the same route into the government coffers, bread on the waters of human interest, humor and pathos. Since the year 1827 only one year has passed, namely 1848, which did not bring a contribution. Rarely does the donor make himself known and then, of course, his identity is carefully guarded. But the accompanying letters tell the story of both millionaire and pauper coming back to the path of righteousness.

Religion Generally Impelling Motive

ONE of the oddest cases on record occurred last November when the Treasury received the halves of four $1,000 bills, with a note, postmarked Washington, saying that the other halves would be sent the next day. And sure enough, they came.

Religion is the impelling motive in most instances, and the end of the year the most fruitful period, very likely because of the practice of starting the new year right.

The rector of St. Paul's Church in London recently had a visit from an American who handed the astounded clergyman the sum of $14,225.15, asking that he transmit it to the United States government.

Another pastor, this time out in Indiana, was the medium for the return of $200 from an old soldier of the Civil War. The veteran, it seems, after laying down his arms after Appomatox, seated himself upon a mule and rode off to the banks of the Wabash. The thing that worried him in his declining years, to the extent of $200, was the fact that that mule happened to be the property of the Army corps of Ulysses S. Grant.

Again, there is a letter in the files which reads as follows:

"Dear President Hoover:

"I am writing you in regard to the sin which I committed while in the Army. I was transferred from the infantry to the quartermaster's branch and while there I took several pair of gloves, shirts and shoes and fetched them home. I was unsaved at that time, but my conscience condemned me so that I burned the stuff up.

"A little later on I was converted at a revival meeting when God forgave me all my sins. Since then I have been on my back track making things right. And this is one of the hardest things I have to do. It seems to take my very life's blood. But God says it must be done. So I am writing to you asking you to forgive me. The Lord shows me that I must pay $50 for the things I took."

One Transgressor Sends $30,000

IT IS not to be supposed that all of the contributors are such simple and poor folk. In the banner year of the Conscience Fund—which was 1916—Secretary McAdoo reaped a harvest of $46,625 made up largely of one single item of $30,000. The anonymous transgressor wrote this confession:

"This makes $80,000 I have sent, or four times the sum I stole from the United States. Conscience gives me no rest until I have consummated my four-fold return like the publican of old. That every thief may understand the awfulness of stealing is the sincere wish of a penitent."

So ended the letter of the greatest contributor to the Conscience Fund, the moneys of which go into the general fund of the Treasury. Yet, there was no more joy or fuss over the return of this prodigal than there was over her who, back in 1896, wrote to Grover Cleveland this letter:

"To His Majesty, President Cleveland:

"I am in a dreadful state of mind. About two years ago I used two postage stamps that had been used before. I did not realize what I had done until lately. I think of it night and day. Now, dear President, will you please forgive me. I will never do it again. Inclosed find cost of three stamps and please forgive me for I was but 13 years old and I am sorry for what I have done."

The signature read: "From one of your subjects."

The President called in the Postoffice Department and the Secret Service and asked them to trace that letter. It was mailed from Ohio, but the government's detective agencies never found the writer. Gruff old Grover forgave her for the theft, but he never forgave her for omitting her name. He had wanted to bring that little girl to the White House as the guest of him whom she had addressed as "His Majesty."

AMERICAN GIRLS

By Winifred Black

Miss Ishbel MacDonald seems to be a young person with a good level head and a pair of unusually keen, young eyes.

She went back to England with her father, the prime minister, a few weeks ago. When she arrived in London she told the newspaper interviewers that she liked America—but she thought American women were dreadfully spoiled.

"Here in Great Britain," said the sapient Miss MacDonald, "we spoil the men. In America they spoil the women."

True for you, my dear, true, true and double true.

Have you ever seen a young Englishman send his pretty sister running upstairs to fetch his favorite pipe or to get a book he has happened to mislay?

Imagine what would happen to a young American in the same class of society who dared to dream of sending his sister, lippity lipping, and clippity clop-pitying up and down stairs to wait upon him.

The male parent is the head of the home, in England, Ireland and Scotland, and woe to the luckless wight, male or female, who forgets this fact for one moment.

All this sort of thing is a good deal of a bore from the American standpoint, but whisper, lean close and let me tell you something—confidentially, oh, quite confidentially, mind you.

I'd rather visit in the home where the man is the head of the house than to spend a few outraged, nervous days in a family where some pert little miss in high school likes this and loathes that, admires so and so and detests thus and so, and all conversation must stop to hear her tell the world all about her funny little mind.

The American woman spoiled? Well, yes she is. From the day of her cradle, she is petted and decorated and kowtowed to, till she gets the idea that she is something with almost a divine right to her own particular way of life. And she's getting worse every day.

But every once in a while one of them gives you a glorious surprise party. I went to dinner with one of these mother's darlings the other night, in the little apartment she and her young husband are turning into a real home. Cook, housekeeper, maid, laundress, companion, wife, sweetheart, she's all these things, and as happy as a lark, too.

She never lifted a finger before she was married.

But now—just watch her step in from the kitchen, slip off her bridal apron and serve as nice a little dinner as gracefully as any woman on earth could possibly serve it.

Yes, we do our best to spoil our girls here in America, but somehow we never quite succeed—do we?
